ABOUT

Unlimited are the names to capture the enchantment of Paris: the City of Light, the City of Love, and the world's fashion capital. Its reputation for sophistication, romance and fascination is unmatched, and its mere mention stirs more than its renowned attractions. Streets and boulevards lined with trees and punctuated by majestic gardens and palaces, each containing stories of centuries past, contribute to the indelible cityscape of the 19th century. The majesty of Paris shines through its legendary high-end retail and fine dining, tailored to the taste of even the most discerning clients. All of Paris's labels are only a mere glimpse into the gloriousness of this grand city. To truly appreciate its splendour, one must experience Paris first-hand, time and time again.

ARRONDISSEMENTS

Like an escargot with its 20 arrondissements spiraling outward, Paris is a unique, ever-evolving city. From its center point, you can explore the "twenty little cities" and find their distinct characters. Whether it's the captivating shops, stirring history, delicious food, or local quartiers, you can discover the iconic Parisian elements in each arrondissement. This is why Paris is often called the "City of Light," as it's filled with endless wonders just waiting to be explored.

THE HEART OF PARIS | 1ST ARRONDISSEMENT

The oldest and most central 1st and 2nd Arrondissements are the two smallest districts of Paris, the seat of royal power in France for centuries and the birthplace of the city. Home to the renowned Louvre Palace, the Right Bank's elegant 1st Arrondissement offers many iconic attractions, from the world-famous Musée du Louvre and the lush Jardin des Tuileries and Jardin du Palais Royal, to the contemporary Collection Pinault – Paris. And at the heart of the Seine, lies the Île de la Cité, whose centuries-old monuments have withstood the test of time. Most renowned of them all is the Notre Dame de Paris cathedral, the most visited monument in France, immortalized by Victor Hugo, and not to mention the Palais de Justice's crown jewel, the majestic Sainte-Chapelle, where the Crown of Thorns and other relics of Christ are kept.

THE HEART OF PARIS | 2ND ARRONDISSEMENT

Tucked away in the 2nd Arrondissement, a chic and serene area beloved by locals, is a traveler's haven with much to offer. From the renowned Notre Dame and the picturesque Seine-side museums, to the iconic Centre George Pompidou and the majestic Place des Victoires, lined with beautiful concave buildings, there is something here to awe and amaze. The area has recently been bustling with exciting new restaurants, such as Frenchie and Le Central, and sophisticated cocktail bars, such as Frenchie Bar a Vin, as well as gourmet shops like Legrand Filles et Fils, making it a chic spot in its own right. Take a tranquil stroll and discover the six roads that come together in the roundabout, making this underrated Parisian neighborhood a wonderful surprise.

THE MARAIS – UPPER MARAIS | 3RD ARRONDISSEMENT

The Marais encompasses the 3rd and 4th Arrondissements and is one of the oldest and most charming quartiers of the city. The arrondissement contains the northern, quieter part of the medieval district of Le Marais. Built over marshlands ("marais"), it was the favored neighborhood of the aristocracy from the 13th to the 17th centuries. Nowadays, you'll find trendy shops and thousands of Parisians out for Sunday brunch. It's also where you go for a bit of a stroll down the grassy path at the equilateral Place de Vosges, the first royal park in Paris open to the public. The 3rd Arrondissement, known as the Haut Marais (Upper Marais), is the best neighborhood for cafes and museums. It underwent a mid-2000s metamorphosis and today bursts with design ateliers and stylish cafes. Unmissable sights include the Musée National Picasso, in a mid-17th century private mansion, and the Musée Carnavalet, retelling the history of the French capital.

ARRONDISSEMENTS

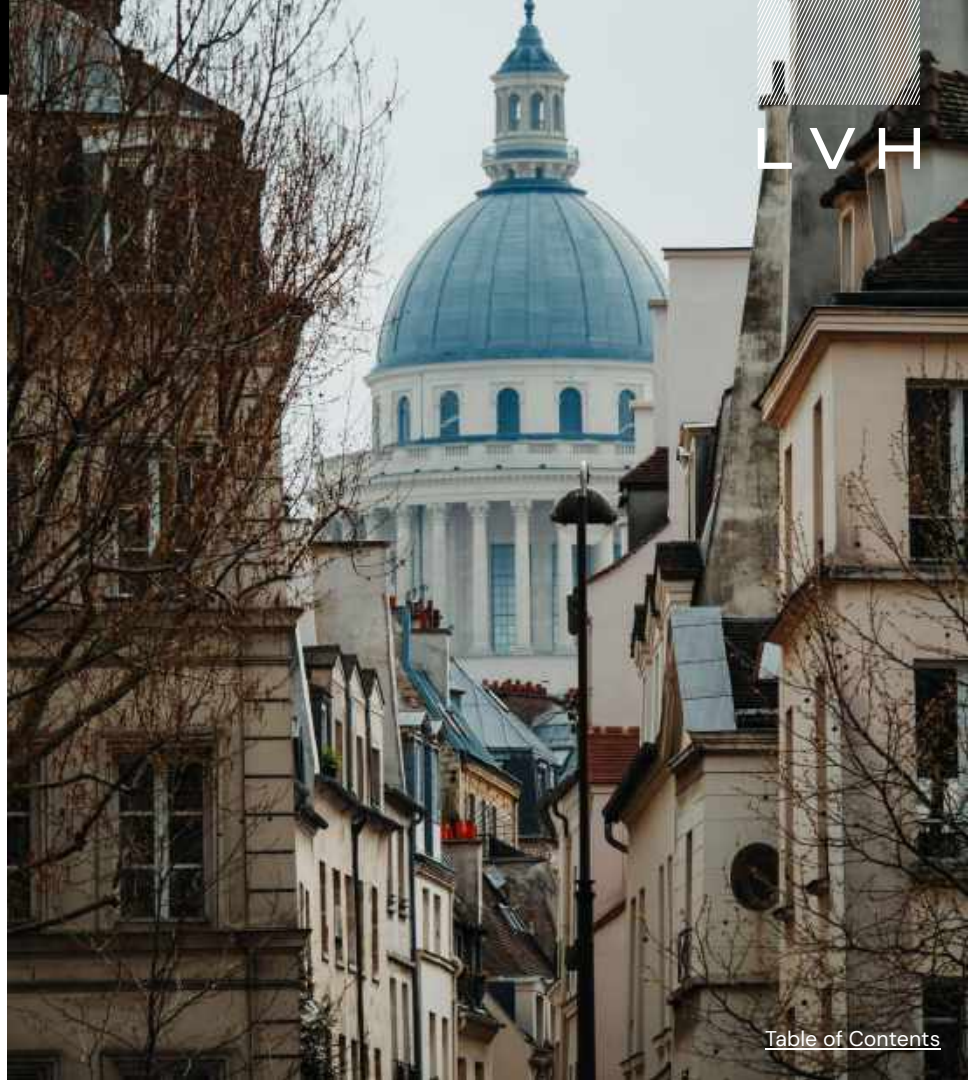

THE MARAIS – 4TH ARRONDISSEMENT

As opposed to the more suave Upper Marais, the Le Marais' more lively southern part contains the 4th Arrondissement. As for the 4th Arrondissement (quatrième), the district received a facelift of its own in the 1960s and '70s and remains one of Paris' most fashionable addresses. The multifaceted 4th Arrondissement is also home to thriving Jewish and LGBTQI+ communities and the iconic Centre Pompidou cultural center showcasing modern and contemporary art.

LATIN QUARTER (THE 5TH ARRONDISSEMENT)

Explore the 5th Arrondissement, the heart of the Latin Quarter of Paris. Home to narrow streets, captivating cultural sites, and a buzzing student atmosphere, the Latin Quarter takes its name from the Latin language used in educational institutions such as the prestigious Sorbonne. Stroll around and lose yourself in the hidden lanes between the Gardens of Luxembourg and the Pantheon. Here, you'll find a taste of Paris as it used to be – a relaxed and friendly place. The Latin Quarter is the most famous area of the city, a haven for second hand bookstores, art-deco cinemas, jazz clubs, and late-night bars. History buffs will be in their element with the Musée National du Moyen Âge showcasing medieval and Roman-era architecture, while Jardin des Plantes is home to several natural history museums. The domed Panthéon mausoleum houses the graves of some of France's most beloved luminaries. To truly get a sense of the Latin Quarter, wander towards the Pantheon, the center of student activities, and discover its lesser-known, charming medieval streets.

ARRONDISSEMENTS

SAINT-GERMAIN-DES-PRÉS – 6TH ARRONDISSEMENT

The 6th Arrondissement of Paris is home to the legendary Saint-Germain-des-Prés, a veritable epicenter of Parisian culture and intellectual life. Boasting some of the most beautiful sights in the city, the neighborhood was a meeting point for French existentialists, Lost Generation Americans, and literary giants in the 19th and early 20th centuries. Here, Simone de Beauvoir and Sartre conversed with poets like Jacques Prevert, revolutionaries gathered around a Procope table, and painters like Delacroix and Manet drew inspiration. Commemorating this rich history, plaques mark the former homes of French literary and cultural icons. Nowadays, Saint-Germain-des-Prés is a dazzling gemstone of exquisite boutiques and restaurants, complete with the lush greenery of Jardin du Luxembourg – where children sail wooden boats on an octagonal pond.

EIFFEL TOWER – 7TH ARRONDISSEMENT

The 7th Arrondissement is home to some of the grand symbols of the city – Musée d'Orsay, the Musée Rodin's sculpture-filled mansion and rose garden, and the indigenous and folk-art museum, Musée du Quai Branly – Jacques Chirac. Manicured lawns front the central Hôtel des Invalides military complex containing Napoléon's tomb. To the west is Paris's emblematic Eiffel Tower. But if you look beyond those glittering facades, you'll find narrow, yet wealthy residential streets, tree-lined parks, the banks of the Seine, and the services Parisians need for their daily lives.

CHAMPS-ÉLYSÉES – 8TH ARRONDISSEMENT

Renowned around the world, the Champs-Élysées Avenue in Paris serves as the beating heart of the city, providing a place of appreciation for both Parisians and tourists. Drawing its name from Greek mythology, Champs-Élysées is said to be the final resting place for warriors. Its 2 kilometers stretch from Place de la Concorde to Place de L'Etoile and offers a picturesque view of Paris' chic districts. Adorned with renowned designer stores such as Louis Vuitton, Cartier and Guerlain, the Avenue des Champs-Élysées lures you in with its high-end boutiques. The 8th Arrondissement, home of luxury, museums and exclusive shopping, houses Parc Monceau and Place de la Concorde at one end, with the Arc de Triomphe at the other. Although the area around the renowned Champs-Élysées Avenue is teeming with tourists and shopping opportunities, the east of the Avenue is a mix of 19th century buildings and businesses, providing a more diverse atmosphere.

ARRONDISSEMENTS

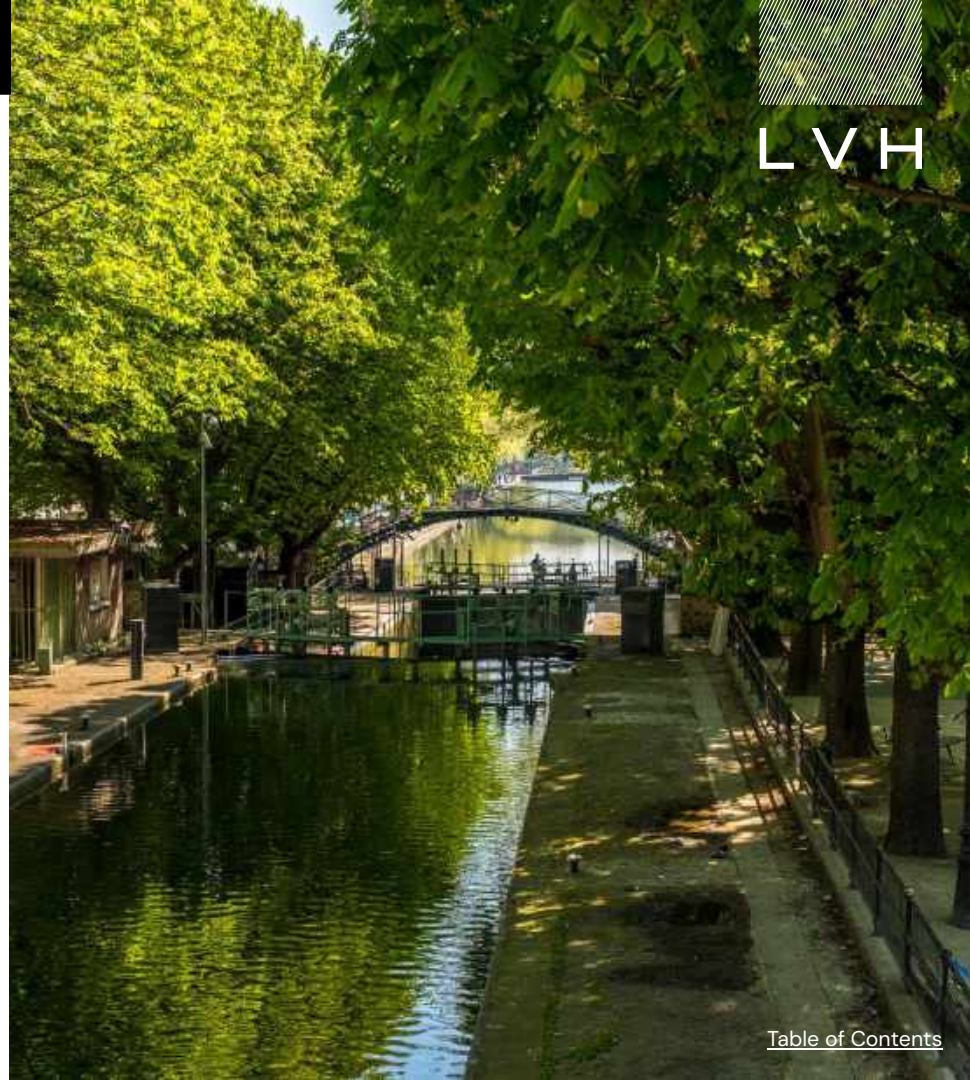

THE OPERA – 9TH ARRONDISSEMENT

The vibrant 9th Arrondissement lies just north of the illustrious 19th century Paris Opera House. Step into the iconic Haussmann Saint-Lazare district to explore its grand avenues and boulevards. This is a mecca for shopaholics, where the renowned Galeries Lafayette and its majestic dome proudly reign. A few steps away, you can browse the illustrious Printemps department store. Try a snack and sample Ladurée macaroons in its departments. Admire the works of art at the iconic Place Vendôme's most celebrated jewelers. And don't miss Rue des Martyrs with its renowned fromageries, boulangeries, and more. To the south, the 2nd Arrondissement awaits with its harmonious blend of residential and business buildings. Farther north, you'll find the legendary Moulin Rouge in the heart of Pigalle.

CANAL ST-MARTIN 10TH - 11TH ARRONDISSEMENTS

This quartier straddles the canal in the 10th and 11th Arrondissements, from the border of the 3rd Arrondissement over to Père Lachaise Cemetery. Canal Saint-Martin is an up-and-coming neighborhood straddling the canal itself as it winds through the 10th and 11th Arrondissements. Today, this working-class district is where young Parisians congregate, so it has a bohemian element. The cafés and restaurants along Canal Saint-Martin make it a popular destination for Parisians and tourists. Iron footbridge-spanned Canal St-Martin's revival continues thanks to indie-run bars, restaurants, shops, and cultural centers such as Point Éphémère.

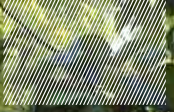

PALACE DE LA BASTILLE – 11TH ARRONDISSEMENT

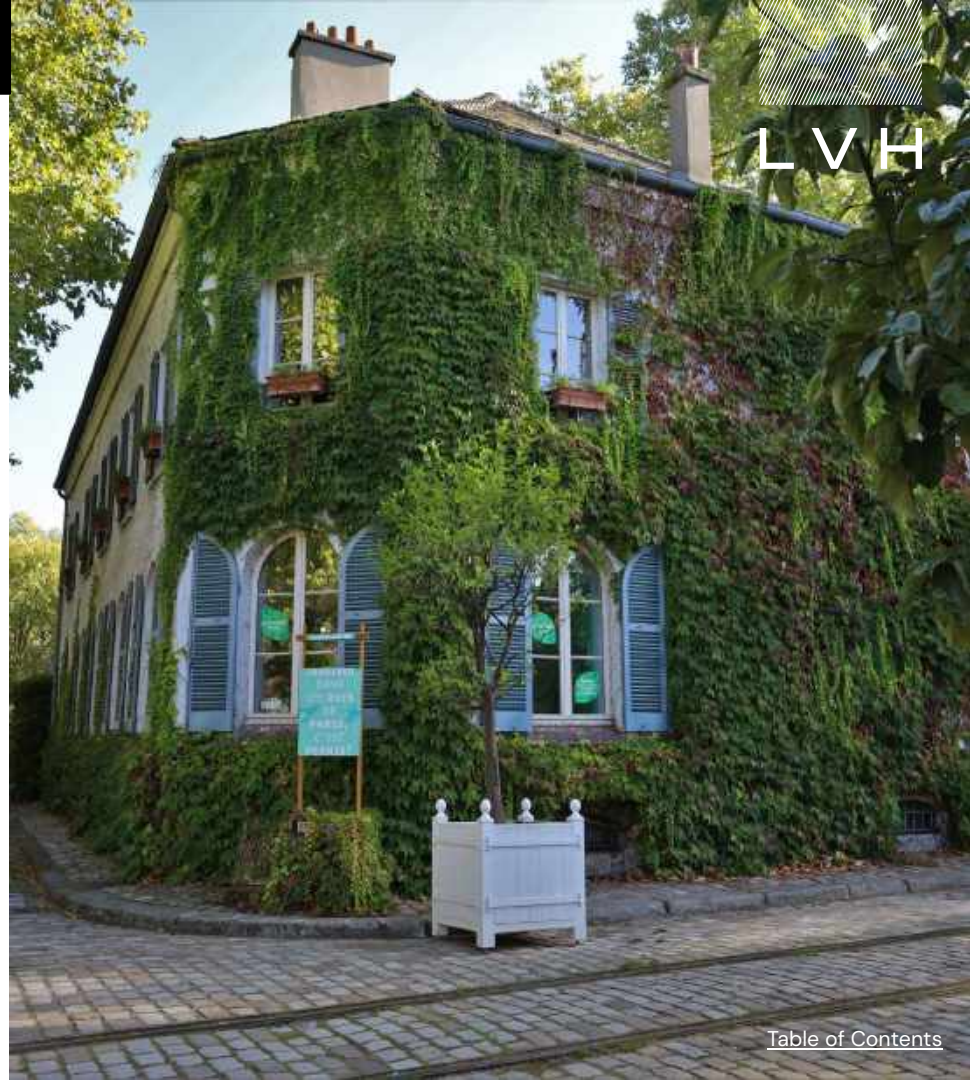

In Paris's most densely populated arrondissement, the 11th (onzième), you can find both The and the New Opera. This primarily residential district is a creative hotbed popular among artists, with a digital museum housed in a foundry, craft breweries, collaborative coffee roasteries, and sizzling new restaurant openings. What's more, its vibrant nightlife along the Rue de la Roquette and Rue Oberkampf has plenty of live music and DJ venues, making it a favourite destination for those who love to go out.

BERCY (12TH ARRONDISSEMENT)

Extending from Place de la Bastille (where the French Revolution first began) to the breathtaking Bois de Vincennes, the 12th Arrondissement is an inviting residential area and a peaceful area of Paris. Explore the old wine warehouse-turned-shopping-center, Bercy Village La Coulée Verte, or take a stroll along the majestic Promenade Plantée, an elevated greenbelt spanning almost three miles. This area of the city is not all business; it is also home to one of Paris's premier concert venues and the Cinémathèque Française.

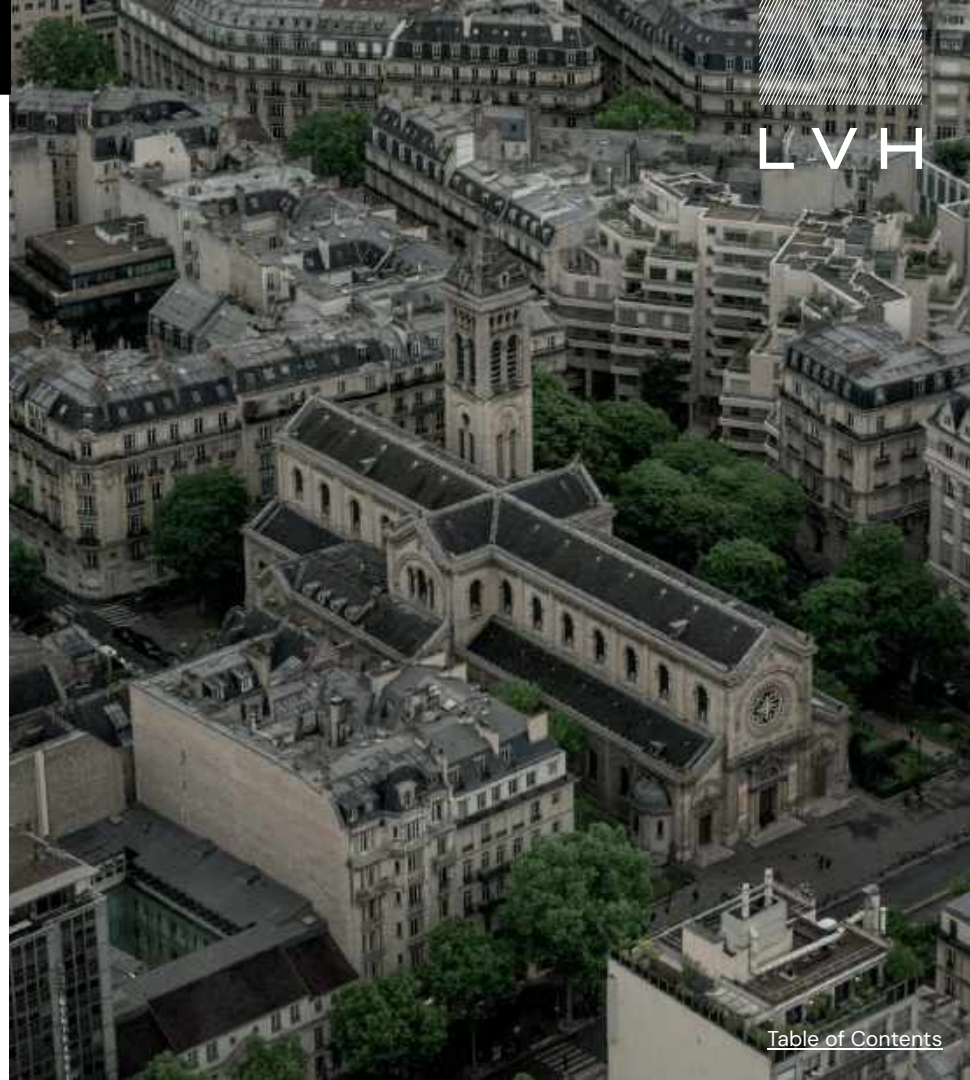

PLACE D'ITALIE (13TH ARRONDISSEMENT)

Often overlooked, the 13th Arrondissement on Paris' Left Bank is a unique blend of cultures and aesthetics. The modern Place d'Italie is the site of one of the most ambitious urban renewal projects in France, while the Butte aux Cailles area offers cobblestone streets and lively restaurants, cafes, and nightlife, creating a feeling of a village. Along the Seine, the modern business district Paris Rive Gauche and the massive Grande Bibliothèque François Mitterrand (the French National Library) dominate the skyline. To the west, behind Place d'Italie, lies the vibrant Quartier Asiatique – home to Paris' Asian community – where Asian bakeries and Buddhist temples sit amidst towering skyscrapers often decorated with street art.

MONTPARNASSE – 14TH ARRONDISSEMENT

Strolling around Montparnasse is a delight for the eyes. It is a bustling cultural hub, boasting theatres and cinemas on Montparnasse Boulevard, and home to numerous offices within the walls of the towering Tour Montparnasse. But the charm of this neighborhood is in the artistic essence from its heyday as the epicenter of the "Roaring 20s", filled with artist workshops and classic brasseries. Famous names such as Fitzgerald, Hemingway, Chagall, and Modigliani have left their mark in the area. Following the Boulevard Raspail southwards, you will find the esteemed Fondation Cartier, before ending up at the iconic Denfert-Rochereau, with its majestic lion statue and the ever-popular Paris Catacombs – a must-see for every tourist.

ARRONDISSEMENTS

VAUGIRARD – 15TH ARRONDISSEMENT

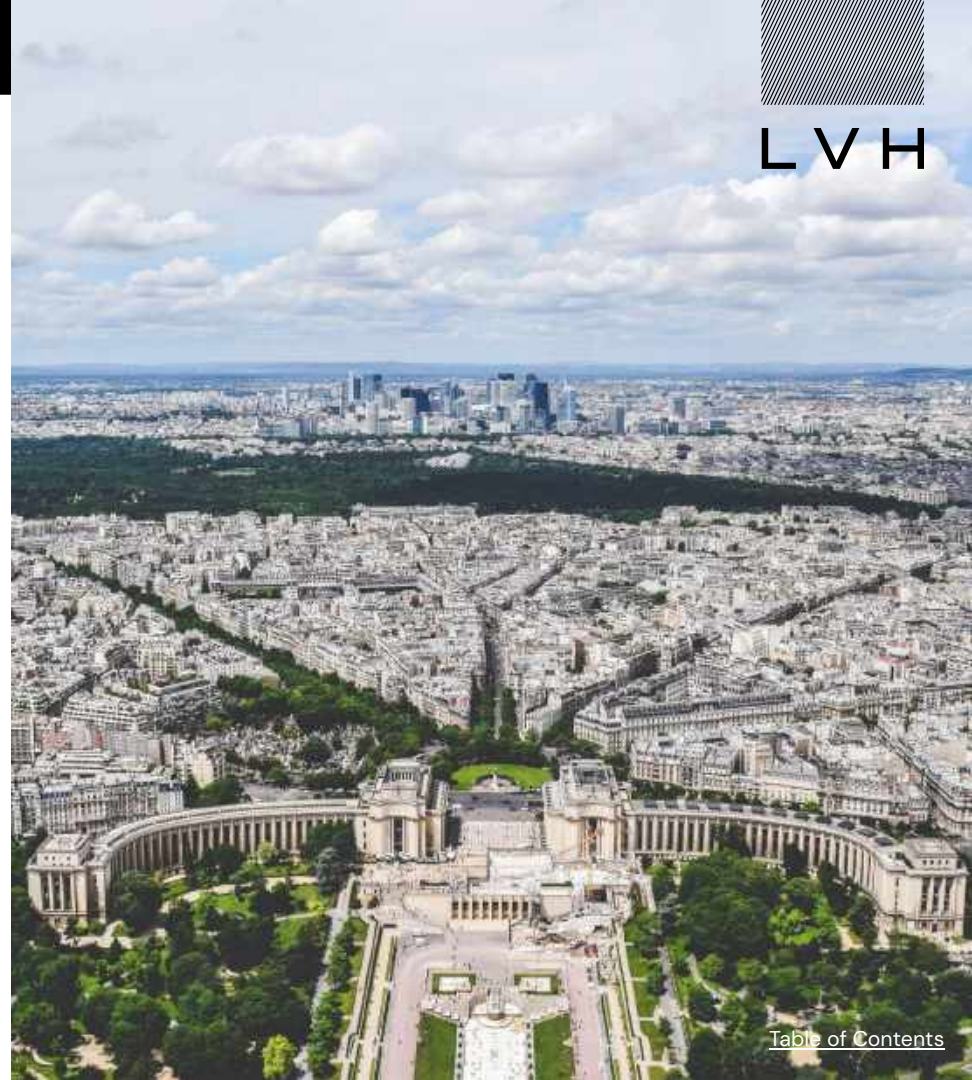

The 15th Arrondissement of Paris, located furthest west on the left bank, is its most populous and contains a fascinating mix of 19th century and modern apartment blocks. Although it lacks the famed landmarks of its immediate neighbours, its culinary attractions make it an idyllic destination for those who enjoy good food without any fuss. You can take a hot air balloon ride from Parc André Citroën and explore the synthetic Île aux Cygnes – the perfect place to indulge your inner gourmet!

TROCADÉRO – 16TH ARRONDISSEMENT

The chic 16th Arrondissement is a neighbourhood of the wealthy. It's filled with lush little parks, broad avenues, stately Haussmannian buildings, and upscale shopping streets. The Trocadéro square, at the summit of the Chaillot hill, is an impressive landmark – offering some of the finest views of the Eiffel Tower from its vibrant cafes. Not to mention, the 16th is home to two renowned Michelin-starred restaurants! Whether it's strolling through the Jardins du Trocadéro or exploring the lesser-known Musée Marmottan Monet, the 16th Arrondissement is certainly one of Paris' most exclusive neighbourhoods.

CLICHY-BATIGNOLLES – 17TH ARRONDISSEMENT

The 17th Arrondissement is a captivating mix of old-world Parisian elegance and contemporary post-industrial beauty. In Clichy-Batignolles, a green, eco-friendly quarter, you'll find a peaceful contrast to the bustle of Place de Clichy. Dubbed a "bobo" spot (or "bourgeois-bohème"), the district is teeming with organic markets, scrumptious restaurants, and narrow alleyways for an idyllic stroll. In the 19th century, the area was frequented by the likes of poets Paul Verlaine and Stéphane Mallarmé, painter Edouard Manet, and author Emile Zola. After exploring its cobblestoned streets and colorful bazaars, you can take a well-deserved break in the trendy Parc Monceau.

MONTMARTRE – 18TH ARRONDISSEMENT

The iconic Montmartre, an 18th Arrondissement neighbourhood, is not only renowned for its winding, ivy-covered streets leading to the majestic Sacré-Cœur basilica, but is also renowned for its off-the-beaten-path neighbour, Batignolles, in the 17th. This historic and creative quartier was home to renowned painters and writers such as Picasso, Renoir, and van Gogh, and is also the home of the Dali Museum. To the south of Montmartre lies the somewhat tame red-light district of Pigalle, host of the Moulin Rouge cabaret, while to its east lies Château Rouge and La Goutte d'Or, which together make up the lively and colourful 'Little Africa' neighbourhood, with its aromatic street markets, vibrant music scene and abundant fabric shops.

BUTTES CHAUMONT – 19TH ARRONDISSEMENT

Boasting two stunning parks, a mile-long canal, and a plethora of bars, restaurants and cultural venues, the northeast corner of Paris is an absolute must-see. From the spectacular Parc de la Villette with its numerous museums and music venues, to the brand-new Philharmonie de Paris, one of the world's most esteemed concert halls, and the Cité des Sciences, visitors are sure to be wowed. Then, of course, there is the idyllic Parc des Buttes Chaumont, with its ravishing grottoes, waterfalls and lake – surely one of the most beautiful parks in Paris!

PÈRE LACHAISE – BELLEVILLE – 20TH ARRONDISSEMENT

The 20th Arrondissement on the eastern edge of Paris holds a special appeal for the art and culture aficionados. Not only is it the final resting place of the rich and famous like Jim Morrison, Oscar Wilde, Édith Piaf, and Chopin, but the bustling Belleville neighborhood is a vibrant, laid-back area with plenty of creative appeal. Check out Le Vieux Belleville for an old-school experience, or explore the unique boutiques and outdoor markets as you take in the street art-covered boulevards.

FRENCHIE * MICHELIN | FRENCH

Frenchie has been a long-time favorite address for Parisians looking for excellent food in stylish surroundings. After chef Greg Marchand was awarded his first Michelin star at the restaurant in January 2019, the accolade has given diners another reason to visit. The unique menu changes every two weeks and is not listed anywhere on the website, making it a surprise every time you go. Classics such as grilled fish and pork belly, as well as more unusual combinations such as foie gras with carrot, tamarind, and macadamia nut, are well-guarded giving you an idea of what to expect from Marchand's modern French menu.

PUR'– JEAN-FRANÇOIS ROUQUETTE * MICHELIN | CREATIVE

Contemporary restaurants at the Park Hyatt, Pur', offer a truly memorable dinner experience. The modern interior designed by Ed Tuttle and located on the iconic rue de la Paix, is both inviting and private with only 35 covers. The colors, lighting and space have been carefully considered, creating a stunning rotunda with a dome and colonnade. Here, the talented Jean-François Rouquette (Taillevent, Le Crillon, La Cantine des Gourmets, Les Muses) shines with his creative and delicious cuisine, beautifully combining the finest produce.

ÉPICURE MICHELIN | CREATIVE

Epicure is a culinary institution for French cuisine. The restaurant is situated in the prestigious Le Bristol Paris and is set among a French garden. Indulge in a truly epicurean experience curated by Chef Éric Frechon, who has four Michelin stars to his name, including one star for French brasserie 114 Faubourg. The chef's finesse in French classics is showcased in his signature dishes like artichoke, duck foie gras, and macaroni stuffed with black truffle. Each exquisite course is paired with a glass of wine selected by their in-house sommelier. This fine dining affair delivers an unprecedented experience.

LE GABRIEL MICHELIN | CREATIVE

This restaurant is ensconced in the elegant, luxurious setting of La Réserve, a townhouse dating back to the 19th century amid a relaxed, on-trend atmosphere. Through different menus, chef Jérôme Banctel invites you to take a journey through his culinary exploration in each morsel you take without leaving Paris. "Escales," "Virée," "Vegetable Virée" and "Périple" reflect the mood of the moment and Le Gabriel's deep-rooted identity. The menus are frequently renewed according to availability and the moment's inspiration.

MICHELIN-STARRED RESTAURANTS

L' ARPÈGE  MICHELIN | MODERN

For a transformative dining experience, L'Arpège is the place to go for imaginative dishes inspired by nature. Long before the rise of vegetarian and vegan cuisine, Alain Passard pioneered vegetable-focused fine dining and has been leading the charge at the three-Michelin-star Arpège since the early 2000s. His revolutionary approach to gastronomy revolutionized the restaurant industry with an emphasis on plant-based delicacies. Passard's menus are guided by the four seasons and the five senses, and he relies on open-flame cooking for both his meat and vegetable dishes, bringing out a variety of exciting flavors, textures, and colors. The restaurant also holds the prestigious Michelin Green Star for its commitment to sustainable practices.

ALLIANCE * MICHELIN | MODEN

The Alliance restaurant is a tale of two passionate partners, Toshitaka Omiya, a Japanese chef from Osaka, and Shawn Joyeux, an expert in hospitality, coming together to embark on a culinary journey. Chef Omiya prefers the real flavors of the seasonal ingredients over extravagant ingredients, with his signature dish being foie gras with pot-au-feu vegetables in ginger. His cooking is simple yet eye-catching and the taste is always impeccable. To complete the dishes, the pastry chef, Morgane Rimbaud, adds a delightful, and almost wicked twist. The restaurant opened its doors in November 2015 in a tucked away street in the 5th Arrondissement, near Boulevard Saint-Germain. The place has an atmosphere of both warmth and elegance that reflects the simplicity and refinement of the dishes served.

L'AMBROISIE MICHELIN | FRENCH CREATIVE

If you're in search of a quintessentially French dining experience in the heart of Paris, look no further than l'Ambroisie. This exquisite restaurant can be found in an elegant townhouse on the Place des Vosges, its interior filled with antique mirrors, a captivating tapestry and a black and white marble flooring that exudes its regal Florentine ambience. On the culinary side, master chef Bernard Pacaud never fails to mesmerize with his creative dishes that brim with his passion. He makes it all appear effortless, yet each element is placed with remarkable artistry, like a masterpiece painting.

RESTAURANTS

In this land of unwavering kitchen etiquette, the food landscape in the French capital is an assemblage of quality dining experiences at all levels. Bustling with brilliant restaurants with 134 Michelin stars divided among the most haute cuisine eateries, Paris counts a bevy of establishments that show off its cosmopolitan nonchalance and spirit. The Paris Society Group and Moma Group, key players in the catering and hospitality sector in France, are responsible for bringing together many great chefs, architects and prestigious artistic directors to create unique and varied dining concepts.

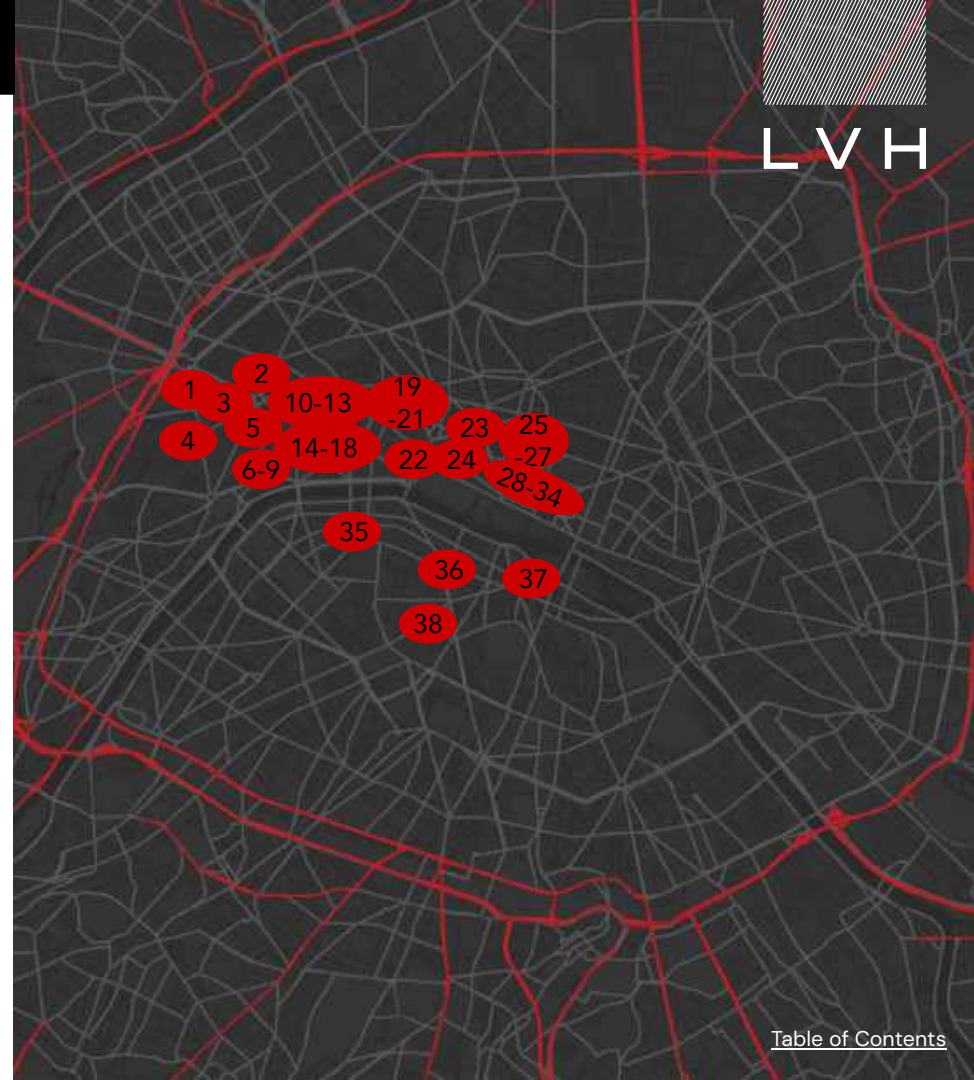

There has also been a renaissance of Paris's long-established gastronomic landscape, with traditional bistros, brasseries, and stylish restaurants serving classic French cooking made famous by chef Auguste Escoffier. The seemingly unyielding landscape of French haute cuisine has had a jolt from the arrival of chef Jean Imbert, who is taking over the reins in the kitchens of the Hotel Plaza Athénée, formerly run by Gallic culinary virtuoso Alain Ducasse. Similarly, the two-star chef Jean-François Piège, who is behind several restaurants in the city, needs no introduction. With his latest project, Mimosa, he stays on top of the wave of success with his other ventures.

RURAL BY MARC VEYRAT | FRENCH TRADITIONAL

Chef Marc Veyrat opens his new authentic and convivial restaurant with a capacity of 220 seats. In terms of the décor designed by Lionel Jadot, wood takes precedence: the tables, the facade and the walls with patchwork benches and sheepskins placed here and there will quickly make you forget you are in the Palais des Congrès. For the Rural's menu, Marc Veyrat brought the essence of the two-starred restaurant La Maison des Bois' cuisine to recreate a more straightforward menu. Expect lake pike Quenelles, signature verbena juice, free-range chicken and its savoyard mataban and blanquette of veal with almond milk. For dessert, stroll to the presentation table with the buffet of Mémé Caravi: the seasonal shortbread tart, the apple or pear tart, the semolina sabayon with salted butter, praline tart, ice cream, or Savoie cake with wild blueberries.

RESTAURANTS

NOTO | ITALIAN

Named after the Sicilian city Noto, this art deco trattoria sits on the second floor of the Salle Pleyel renowned concert hall. Decorated by designer Laura Gonzalez, the dining room illuminates a joyous mixture of inspirations from traveling all over Sicily, offering a very marked result of converting the syncretic culture of Sicily into the interior design. Chef Patrick Charvet crafts a Sicilian-inspired feast with colorful presentations and bright dressings. For a pleasant meal, try the octopus carpaccio with roasted bell peppers, grapefruit and green mint, and the grilled tuna complemented by caramelized eggplants and squid chips. Finish with a tasty semifreddo with frozen lemon and verbena. Expect an exciting wine list with many Italian labels.

RESTAURANTS

VICTORIA PARIS | MEDITERRANEAN

Above all, Victoria Paris is the story of one of the most beautiful private mansions in the city, standing proudly on the Place de l'Etoile. Elegance takes on a majestic dimension in the volumes, the veined marble and the woodwork that dress the venue. However, it shakes up the canons and constrictions, offering a sunny menu and deliberately chic and informal service that reign in this Parisian meeting place.

MAISON RUSSE | RUSSIAN

In the heart of the 16th Arrondissement, a few steps from Place Victor Hugo, 59 Avenue Raymond Poincaré houses this new Russian concept. Hidden inside a historic house is a series of lavishly designed spaces – decked out with a timeless style overseen by designer Laleh Amirassefi. The décor is warm and welcoming, with a mix of Russian-themed ornaments (including a life-size Russian doll), Ottoman-style seating, Persian rugs, plenty of sumptuous fabrics, and glamorous baroque touches. There's also a charming hidden patio populated by trees and flowers and wrought iron furniture adorned with rustic materials. Then there's the “Franco-Russian” menu offering an exquisite blend of Russian and French dishes like baked potato topped with caviar, linguine with lemon bottarga and much more.

RESTAURANTS

BRASSERIE CEZANNE | FRENCH, MEDITERRANEAN

Chez Cézanne, a restaurant with Provençal flavors, offers tasty cuisine in a dashing universe. Inspired by the Provence of Paul Cézanne, you can discover family cuisine in the colors of the South in a friendly spirit. Share a convivial moment in one of the most beautiful districts of Paris, between the Trocadero and Place de l'Etoile, and at the establishment that welcomes you in an exotic atmosphere. A unique and atypical place imagined like a Provençal house, the Brasserie Cézanne immerses you in the good mood of the south.

RESTAURANTS

GIRAFE | FRENCH, SEAFOOD

Girafe provides an upscale dining experience with a fantastic view overlooking the Eiffel tower. Nestled in the heart of the Cité de l'Architecture in Paris, Girafe is all about the gestures of yesteryear. Designed by Joseph Dirand in the spirit of the 1930s, the restaurant boasts hushed décor, with cream-colored banquettes, a marble bar, tropical plants, and original pilasters. In this stylish seafood restaurant, the fare fluctuates between heritage and modern cuisine as a mixture of simplicity and luxury. Fish, shellfish, and crustaceans are prepared in all their forms – classic, raw, like ceviche or sashimi, and grilled (lobster, sole, turbot). The dining experience combines allure, unexpectedness, and a typical Parisian carefree spirit.

RESTAURANTS

RESTAURANT MONSIEUR BLEU | FRENCH

Housed in the west wing of the Palais de Tokyo, on the edge of the quays, facing the Eiffel Tower, Monsieur Bleu comes with a revamped architectural design. The cosmopolitan and international space conceived and designed by the architect Joseph Dirand is a place to eat, meet, share and dance. Enjoy one of the most beautiful terraces in Paris with a breathtaking view of the Eiffel Tower. Like the Palais de Tokyo, Monsieur Bleu is unique and elusive. It's the ideal venue for dinners with friends, lunches with the family, meetings between artists, business meals, and restless nights. Monsieur Bleu offers simple and elegant cuisine comprised of seasonal products.

RESTAURANTS

FOREST RESTAURANT | MEDITERRANEAN AND MIDDLE EASTERN

Forest is the new post-modern refuge installed at the Museum of Modern Art in Paris. Multidisciplinary collective Uchronia has designed the interior that takes on the air of a brutalist lair combining concrete textures, creeping vegetation and serene décor, developing a narrative that evokes a forest-like conception. The Forest is structured around four spaces reflecting Parisian artistic life — the terrace, the entrance, the agora and the large hall. Different but complementary, the rooms and their atmospheres change during the day as the museum's doors open and close, making Forest both the restaurant of the Musée d'Art Moderne de Paris and, in the evening, taking on a life of its own. The food at Forest is quite sophisticated and healthy, with lots of quality vegetables and Middle Eastern ingredients prepared by French virtuoso chef Julien Sebbag, who perfected his mastery in Tel Aviv and is riding the wave of popularity of Israeli restaurants like Miznon.

RESTAURANTS

BAMBINI PARIS | ITALIAN

Bambini is a hip eatery at the Palais de Tokyo with an elaborate Italian theme. As soon as you walk through the door, you are plunged into a contrasting, playful and sophisticated décor, evocative of a festive, colorful and even theatrical Italy. Outside, sheltered under fabric parasols and comfortably installed on flowery benches, the forecourt of Palais de Tokyo vibrates. Besides Italian aperitivo, generous refreshing cocktails like Cleopatra Moscato or Carpano Antica Formula, cicchetti, and tapas, Bambini Paris serves the most tantalizing desserts. These include tiny Neapolitan donuts, all hot for dipping in melted chocolate and Piedmontese hazelnuts, giant lemon tart, or huge cups of homemade ice cream. It is perfect for a sunny afternoon or late-night drinks with friends.

RESTAURANTS

MISS KO | JAPANESE

Miss Ko is a high-concept lounge and restaurant with a transporting quality, inviting a hip, fashionable, very bobo crowd. Inspired by the persona of the mysterious though fictitious Miss Ko, the venue is a Eurasian fusion fantasy world filled with neon and blinking countertops, part Blade Runner, part Alice in Wonderland. A large bar area runs the length of the room and creative drinks showcase ingredients like shochu, lemongrass syrup, and yuzu liqueur. Try the Crazy Mo Fo, an exotic blend of coconut milk, Bahn lot, bourha and cane sugar. The food menu, by chef Fabrice Monot, is full of inventive Japanese-French fare, dishes like rainbow samurai rolls, made from California salmon, avocado and mango, Asian-style ribs, and a black salmon burger. Desserts are similarly inventive and a range of funky bubble teas, including delicious and refreshing lychee and kiwi, are also on offer.

JEAN IMBERT AU PLAZA ATHÉNÉE * MICHELIN | CLASSIC FRENCH

Jean Imbert's new gastronomic, Michelin-starred restaurant in the heart of the Plaza Athénée is an ode to noble local produce and heritage cuisine that has made French cooking famous. Chef Jean Imbert unearthed ancient recipes – some 250 years old – to celebrate France's rich culinary heritage creating fares that cross trends and centuries while remaining profoundly modern. The dining experience at Jean Imbert Au Plaza Athénée transcends time and place, returning guests to the soulful origins of French dining. The door marks the entry point to this world where everything centers around a grand Royal Table crafted from antique Breccia marble. Adorning the room with 20,000 gold leaves and a gilded ceiling, designer Remi Tessier has created a shining jewel of a restaurant with a warm, convivial atmosphere.

MANKO RESTAURANT | PERUVIAN

Peruvian cuisine has been an inspiration for every culture in the world for centuries. Influences from Europe, Japan, China and Africa have blended with the ancient Andean culture and the vitality of the Amazon, giving birth to a unique world of flavors revealed and shared in the present. This is how Peruvian food is celebrated and how Manko arrived in Paris. The architect behind the decor is Laura Gonzales, who created and brought her insights with a hint of authenticity and strong identities, mixing it with Peruvian influences and those that have originated in the Andes. "The idea was to succeed in transcribing the raw refinement," said the architect.

RESTAURANTS

GIGI RESTAURANT | ITALIAN

Gigi is situated above the Théâtre des Champs-Élysées and is designed by Hugo Toro. The restaurant offers refined cuisine with an Italian flavor, to be enjoyed while contemplating the spectacular view. Gigi is the latest venue by the Paris Society Group. It gives pride of place to Italian gastronomy and high-end style. Every exceptional address has its mythical bar, and as such Gigi is no exception to the rule with its Bellini Bar (open every evening). This is the meeting point for aperitivo lovers. The playlist, performed by talented live musicians, mixes jazz, iconic songs from the 50s and 60s and other Italian and international favorites.

L'AVENUE | FRENCH

One of the best of any Costes Brothers eatery, L'Avenue, is set in the 8th Arrondissement opposite Christian Dior in a meticulous brasserie decorated by Jacques Garcia. It is a place with alluring high-wattage clientele in winter and in summer alike. Most of the fun is sitting outside; however, inside, a dark and attractive space is layered in heavy red velvet, Murano chandeliers and a seductive lounge space that perk with life from day until very late at night. A traditional brasserie menu with trendy flair begins with a morning breakfast menu of egg, pastry and smoked fish specialties. Lunch and dinner are a more elaborate affair with homemade foie gras served with toast, a full raw bar and a delectable selection of salads.

APICIUS * MICHELIN | FRENCH

Apicius, with a Michelin star to its name, is set in a sumptuous 18th century private mansion that calls to mind a small palace. Created by Jean-Pierre Vigato, a champion of fine dining, it is now linked to the talents of Mathieu Pacaud, who alchemizes ingredients and creates a symbiosis of tradition and creativity. Accompanied by Jérôme Chaucesse as a pastry chef, together they reinvent the classics. In the spirit of the new Apicius, the Bar is the enfant terrible of the house. The mixologists show off their brilliance, maneuvering layered cocktails in spontaneous creations.

LE BOEUF SUR LE TOIT | FRENCH

The Boeuf Sur le Toit is a famous brasserie in an art deco style with wood paneling, paintings, sculptures, engraved mirrors, a large mahogany bar and a marble entrance. Since its creation in 1922, the history of Le Bœuf sur le Toit has been closely linked to a group of artists, musicians, poets and painters who met every week with Jean Cocteau – then the owner of the premises. Artists who frequented the venue include Christian Dior, Coco Chanel, Francis Picabia, Picasso, Erik Satie, and later Charles Trenet or Léo Ferré. Faithful to the state of mind of Le Bœuf sur le Toit, the interior designer Alexis Mabille favors a unique decor inspired by the restaurant in its most glorious years, the 1930s and 1940s. Le Boeuf sur le Toit serves excellent, very well-prepared and classic French cuisine, with dishes like sea bream in sesame sauce or duck breast in honey and ginger. The cocktail menu is the result of close collaboration with the iconic Maison Hennessy. Le Bœuf sur le Toit is experienced as an evolving place where you can spend the evening without leaving it – from the restaurant to the bar, to the music hall, smoking room and private lounges.

RESTAURANTS

LE PIAF | FRENCH

Nestled in the heart of the 8th Arrondissement, a stone's throw from the Champs-Élysées is le Piaf – a restaurant, a bar, and nightclub. A welcoming atmosphere, red velvet benches and subdued lighting enhanced by candlelight guarantee mellow evenings. You can enjoy traditional French cuisine in the restaurant, while in the basement, the cocktail bar transforms into a night nest on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights. Tailor-made cocktails, specially created for Le Piaf, are the ideal elixir to delight patrons with the sounds of a piano playing French chansons and English pop.

RAN | JAPANESE

Ran – named after the last film by the great Akira Kurosawa – presents the world of today's enigmatic Tokyo enhanced by notes of French gastronomy. RAN is not simply a restaurant, it is a feeling and a space suspended between two times: a contemporary Japan and an atmosphere of a mythical former private mansion of the Marquis de Lafayette, dating back to 1728. Moma Group and Blackcode took over the house, entrusting the décor to the interior design alchemist Tristan Auer who combined tradition and modernity, refinement and elegance, creating sensual and singular beauty. In the kitchen, chef Shuhei Yamashita, from Kinugawa Vendôme, signs the menu of Japanese gastronomy with modern twists. Dried bonito broth – dashi style – with mushrooms, salmon carpaccio, chicken gyozas, and vegetables are some of the specialties.

RESTAURANTS

PERRUCHE | MEDITERRANEAN

The cocktail bar and restaurant Perruche is a lush rooftop oasis with a Mediterranean vibe and an incredible 360-degree view of Paris. Perched atop an ultra-lux Printemps Haussmann department store, Perruche (or Parakeet in English) sprawls across a 5,380-square-foot rooftop terrace filled with lounge sofas and dining tables. Open daily from lunch to late night, the rooftop offers seating both at the lovely terrace and also in the very stylish indoor restaurant, complete with panoramic floor-to-ceiling windows. Enjoy sunny cocktails or choose from a food menu offering seasonal and colorful dishes perfect for sharing. Given the location, Perruche is an ideal pit stop after a day of shopping. Still, this sophisticated, chic, Mediterranean-ish oasis is worth visiting any time of the day, or at night, when the rhythm of live music fills the terrace.

RESTAURANTS

COCO | FRENCH

Coco is housed in the historic Charles Garnier building of the Paris Opera House, the Palais Garnier. The two syllables say a lot – CoCo sounds like a champagne bubble, a mixture of chic and laughter. When the Paris Opera House, the Palais Garnier, first opened in 1875, the idea was to always have a glorious place to dine before and after performances. By opening its doors, Coco fulfills that vision. Laurent de Gourcuff, the founder of the group Paris Society, is the wizard behind the venue, together with a young designer Corinne Sachot. De Gourcuff invited young French chef Julien Chicoisne to run the kitchen with a fresh, contemporary interpretation of surf and turf. Make way for beautiful dishes and intense flavors, including an entire cooked artichoke stuffed with green beans and mustard dressing. Opt for churros with a vanilla cream and chocolate sauce for a sweet and succulent ending.

RESTAURANTS

MIMOSA RESTAURANT | MEDITERRANEAN

Located on the edge of the central courtyard, the restaurant is open from lunchtime until late in the evening. Its menu is designed by the famous Michelin-starred chef Jean-François Piège, responsible for honoring French gastronomic craftsmanship. Mimosa combines nature, pleasure and the sun. For chef Piège, "Mimosa is an ode to France, to its exceptional products, heritage, and identity." That's why there's nothing artificial, complicated, or overwhelming: just a beautiful bar, spectacular staging, and a generous menu.

RESTAURANTS

CAFÉ LAPÉROUSE | FRENCH

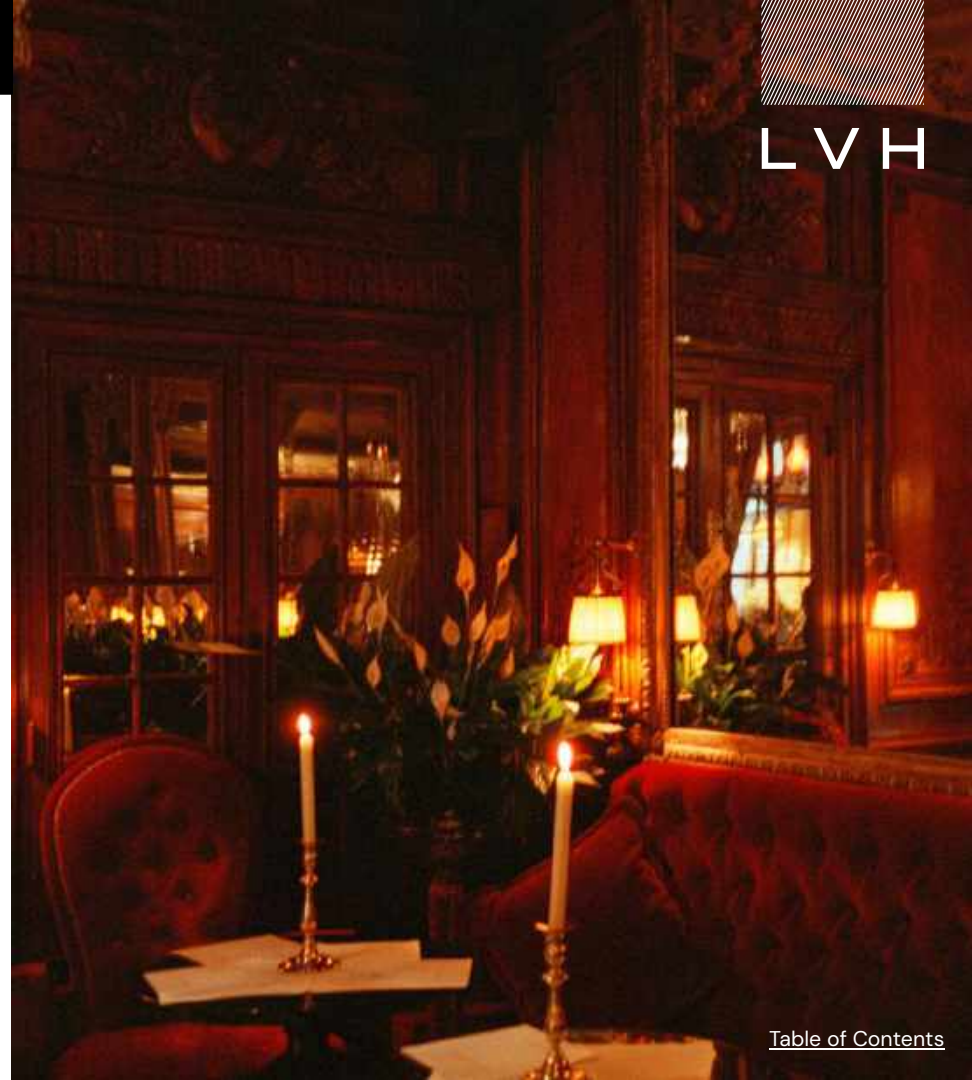

Café Lapérouse is anchored in the freshly renovated Hotel de la Marine set at the place de la Concorde. A spectacular romantic décor was created by Cordélia de Castellane, who carefully considered every detail of the décor. All elements were made by French craftsmen, from the bar to the seats, including the woodwork and ceramics. Colorful prints in “Lapérouse blue,” touches of art deco, and West Indies influences pay tribute to the 18th century French explorer who serves as the restaurant’s namesake. All floral and aquatic motifs on the plates and the impressive mural were drawn by the interior designer herself. To satisfy socialite appetites, the menu takes on the repertoire of new classics of the Parisian brasserie: tuna ceviche in coconut milk, royal sea bream carpaccio and great Parisian classics: foie gras terrine and a croque-lapérouse with truffle and to top it all off the meringue filled with pistachio cream.

RESTAURANTS

HÔTEL COSTES | MEDITERRANEAN

The restaurant at the Hôtel Costes is a new-generation gastronomic venue. The atmosphere is electric, the déco set of velvets, brocades, and lots and lots of tassels making it sumptuous. As for the menu, it is full of decadent hits, and the air smells like roses and musk. The entire ground floor is lit almost exclusively with candles. At Hotel Costes, meals are served all hours of the day and night. Jean-Louis Costes has created a menu including his favorite dishes with an eclectic range of "signature" dishes made using seasonal ingredients: delectable asparagus for a light lunch, "foie gras" that may be shared by two guests as a delightful snack.

KINUGAWA VENDOME | JAPANESE

Kinugawa Vendome is a legendary venue for those who seek Japanese fine cuisine. As such, it has been hosting a prestigious and cosmopolitan clientele for more than 30 years. The restaurant can be described as an Izakaya with a contemporary twist, housing majestic graphic designs within its elegant architecture. Its atmosphere is one of luxury and warmth. Daichi Ando's work as Kinugawa Vendome's chef, recreates the essence of Japanese culinary tradition, through his virtuosity and unique vision.

RESTAURANTS

BALAGAN RESTAURANT | ISRAELI

Balagan (which means hullabaloo in Hebrew) sets the tone for any type of celebration. Helmed by a doyen of Israeli cuisine, chefs Assaf Granit's and Uri Navon's dishes at Balagan are an anthology of cleverly juxtaposed Mediterranean flavors: generous and aromatic cuisine, with a masterful use of spices, chillies and herbs. The interesting wine list showcases wines from the Mediterranean (Israel, Lebanon, Italy, and Spain). As for the dining area, seating is mainly divided across cozy corners and larger, but intimate booths. A few stools are propped by the open kitchen, which forms the center of the electrifying energy permeating through the restaurant.

RESTAURANTS

LOULOU | ITALIAN

Loulou, the restaurant at the Musée des Arts Décoratifs, boasts a unique and privileged location at the heart of the Palais du Louvre. In the busy environs of the Rue de Rivoli, where museums and grand hotels rub shoulders with luxury and designer boutiques, the restaurant finds itself at the very heart of Parisian life. Loulou's décor is the handiwork of Joseph Dirand. The low ceilinged ground floor encouraged the architect to divide the space into several rooms for added intimacy. In perfect harmony with the context, Benoit Dargère has elaborated a sun-kissed menu of generous and familial cuisine that's simple and expressive. In time with the seasons, Loulou unveils dishes from the French and Italian Riviera in addition to a handful of staple classics.

L'ECLAIREUR | FASHION

First launched in the early 1980s as a men's-only concept store L'Eclaireur now has several locations around the city which also carry women's clothing, in addition to luxury home design items, bags and accessories, and objets d'art. The brainchild of fashionista couple Martine and Armand Hadida, L'Eclaireur is as much known for its prestigious setting as it is for its high. One of the boutiques is housed in the former stables of a private manor in a hidden spot near the square, the Place des Victoires right in the heart of BCBG (bon chic bon genre) Paris. L'Eclaireur carries a wide range of prêt à porter (ready-to-wear) and haute couture (high-end) designer lines, including Alexander McQueen, Emilio Pucci, Oscar de la Renta, Maison Margiela, and other well-known names. It's also a hotspot for up-and-coming international designers.

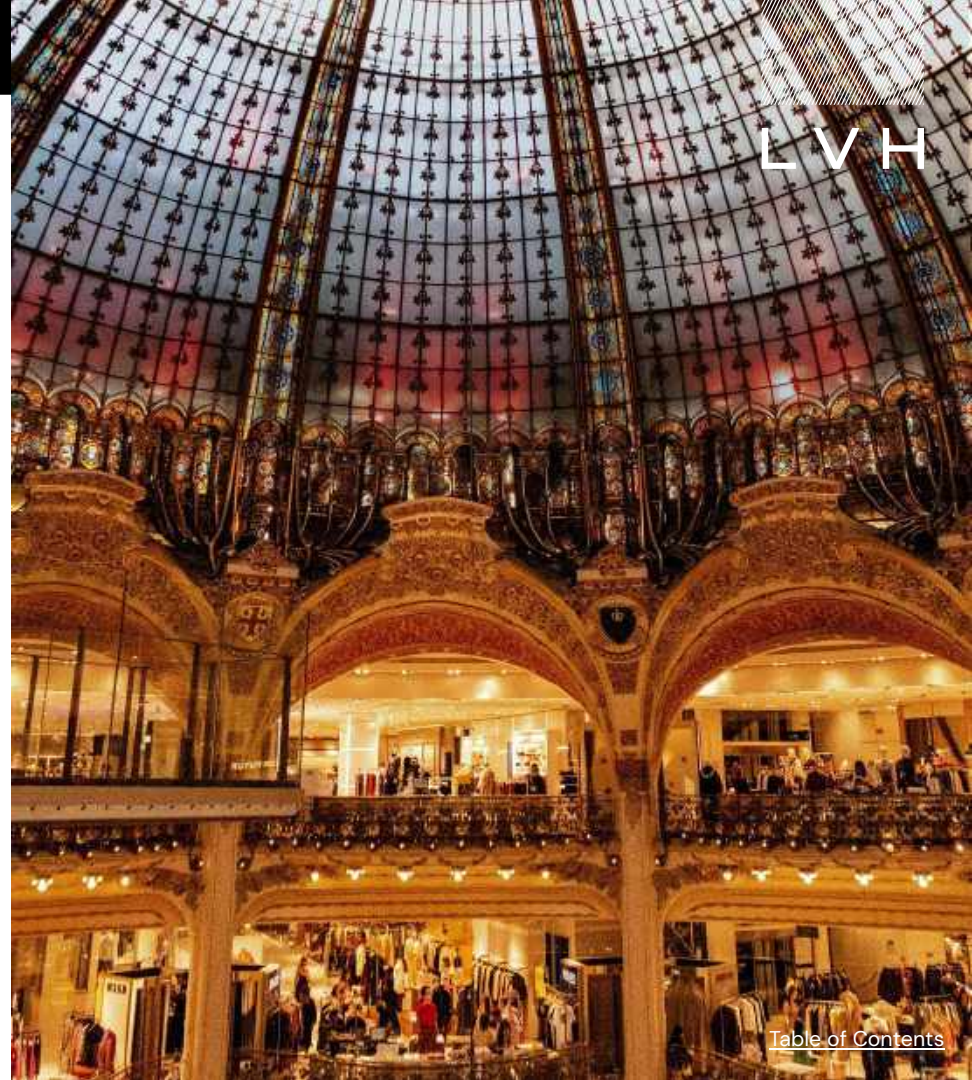

PRINTEMPS | FASHION, BEAUTY & HOME DECOR

More focused on luxury brands than the Galeries Lafayette, the French department store Printemps carries high-end beauty products, jewelry, clothing, furniture, and more. The chain has several locations around Paris, but the store on Boulevard Haussmann stands out. The store's façade has been declared a historical monument and the panoramic rooftop view of the Paris skyline is quite simply glorious. As for the shopping, the customer service is exceptional, and with several floors of high-fashion styles, you could spend days getting lost in gorgeous garments.

THE GALERIES LAFAYETTE (LES GALERIES LAFAYETTE)

Surely on every shopper's list when visiting Paris, the flagship store of Les Galeries Lafayette is a must-see. The impressive exterior of this classic Parisian department store enchants as much as eight levels of designer clothing, cosmetics, and housewares tempt you at every turn under a jaw-dropping stained-glass dome. Besides, the Galeries Lafayette is also home to more than 15 different dining options, with menus ranging from homemade hamburgers to caviar. With everything you'll ever need right inside the department store, it's a great place to go on rainy days.

MEMO | FRAGRANCES

On elegant Rue Cambon in the 1st Arrondissement sits Memo Paris, an upscale boutique whose perfume label was created by Paris-born Clara Molloy and her husband, John. It takes the roots from the many journeys this couple shared through their passion for travel. Les Echappées, or “the escapes” is a collection of fragrances, each symbolizing one of these journeys. From Lalibela in Ethiopia to Granada, Spain to Inlé Lake in Burma, every unique scent transports you to a distant land. Memo Paris has recently created The Flying Collection, four luxurious fragrances exclusively available at their Paris boutique and at London’s Harvey Nichols. AVENUE MONTAIGNE | FASHION & BEAUTY

Avenue Montaigne boasts numerous haute couture stores like Louis Vuitton, Dior, Chanel, Fendi, Valentino, Ralph Lauren, Yves Saint Laurent, Gucci, Chanel, Prada, Chloe, Giorgio Armani, Versace, and Dolce & Gabbana, as well as jewelers like Bulgari and other upscale establishments. By the 1980s, the avenue was considered “la grande dame” of French streets for high fashion and accessories and is now considered more important than rue du Faubourg Saint Honoré. Several established clothing designers are located here, particularly the LVMH (Moët Hennessy Louis Vuitton) group. LVMH bought investment and international attention to the street, and its stable top designers and firms, such as Céline, Louis Vuitton, Inès de la Fressange, and formerly Christian Lacroix, own a substantial portfolio of the street's real estate.

LEGACY | CONCEPT STORE

Created in 2019 by Sébastien Chapelle and BOW Group, Legacy is an avant-garde store specifically designed for luxury hotels. Before conquering the world's greatest capitals, the first of its kind opened at the Fouquet's Barrière Paris Hotel near the Champs-Élysées. This unique place invites visitors to discover personalized services and exclusive products, including the most sought-after creations in the worlds of high tech, lifestyle, watches, grooming, accessories, and jewelry, as well as a selection of beautiful books and a space dedicated to travel in all its forms.

PLACE VENDÔME & RUE SAINT HONORÉ | FASHION

From Louboutin to Chanel and Louis Vuitton to Longchamp, famous luxury brand names dominate around the Place Vendôme or along the Rue Saint Honoré. This oh-so-chic part of Paris lies north of the Tuileries Gardens and extends west to the Palais de l'Elysées, the home of the French President. The area attracts many tourists, window shoppers, and luxury lovers alike.

LEGRAND FILLES ET FILS | GOURMET

Legrand Filles et Fils originally opened in 1880 as a gourmet grocery store, and through the next five generations and 140 years, became an iconic destination for gourmet food and fine wine. Wine has always been at the heart of Legrand Filles et Fils. Stepping into the shop from the épicerie will make you feel like you were in Paris in the early 1900s. From the wood shelves and tiled floors to the corks inlaid on the ceiling, every detail is authentic. You'll find plenty of wines, liqueurs, and other products, including roasted coffee, loose-leaf teas, incredible jams, gourmet olive oil and vinegar, and plenty of sumptuous sweet treats neatly arranged in glass jars.

JACQUES GENIN | CHOCOLATIER

Chocolatier and pâtissier Jacques Genin is a man of many sweet skills. In addition to his diverse array of chocolates in seasonal flavors, including praline and ganache, it's easy to become seduced by his other specialties, such as caramels with mango-passion fruit and pâtes de fruits in a rainbow of flavors. The master chocolate maker also has quite a reputation for patisseries. His Paris-Brest, a choux pastry filled with hazelnut praline cream, is widely known to be the best in the city.

GUERLAIN | BEAUTY & FRAGRANCES

The name Guerlain has been around since 1828, standing for bespoke fragrances. Although founded in 1828, the Guerlain name rose to fame in 1852 when its founder, Pierre-François-Pascal Guerlain, created a special scent for Empress Eugenie's wedding to French Emperor Napoleon III. The first bottle was decorated with bees, a symbol of the empire, and today's bottles continue to follow that tradition. While their popular perfumes can be bought around the world, here in Paris, in this little shop in Passy, you can still get a perfume designed just for you. One, that according to the in-house perfumiers, will suit your personality, your character, and express your individuality.

ASSOULINE PARIS | BOOK STORE

There's no other brand that marries printed books and luxury quite like Assouline. Prosper Assouline and his wife, Martine, opened their first Paris boutique in 2005, intending for it to be a destination for book lovers and luxury gift shoppers alike. The bookstore is perfectly situated at 35 Rue Bonaparte in Saint-Germain-des-Prés, just a few steps away from the illustrious Café de Flore and Les Deux Magots, both cultural and literary legends in their own rights. The signature red walls are warm and inviting and various objets d'art punctuate the space exude an art gallery feel. While the floor-to-ceiling, Mondrian-style shelves are heavy with books covering a variety of topics ranging from art, architecture, travel, gastronomy, luxury cars, and fashion.

LE BON MARCHÉ | DEPARTMENT STORE

Le Bon Marché Rive Gauche was the first department store in the world. It opened in 1852 in Paris at the instigation of Aristide Boucicaut and his wife, Marguerite. They were both in favor of “a new kind of store that would thrill all the senses.” Combining unconventionality and elegance, this unique space designed by the architect Louis-Charles Boileau and the engineer Gustave Eiffel displayed a singular style influenced by the creative vitality of Rive Gauche. An elegant atmosphere and a refined selection of high-end products and services make Le Bon Marché Rive Gauche the most selective department store in Paris.

SHAKESPEARE AND COMPANY | BOOK STORE

Shakespeare and Company has long been a temple of knowledge and creativity situated on the banks of the Seine opposite Notre Dame, giving off an almost whimsical, lost-in-time aura. The bookstore was opened and operated by American expat Sylvia Beach. It was frequented by the likes of Ernest Hemingway, James Joyce, Gertrude Stein, Ezra Pound, the Fitzgeralds, and many other great writers who called Paris home at the time. Its original incarnation published Joyce's Ulysses, therefore the place needs no introduction. There isn't a book lover in the world who hasn't heard of – and dreamt of shopping at – Shakespeare and Company in Paris.

MUSEUM OF GUSTAVE MOREAU

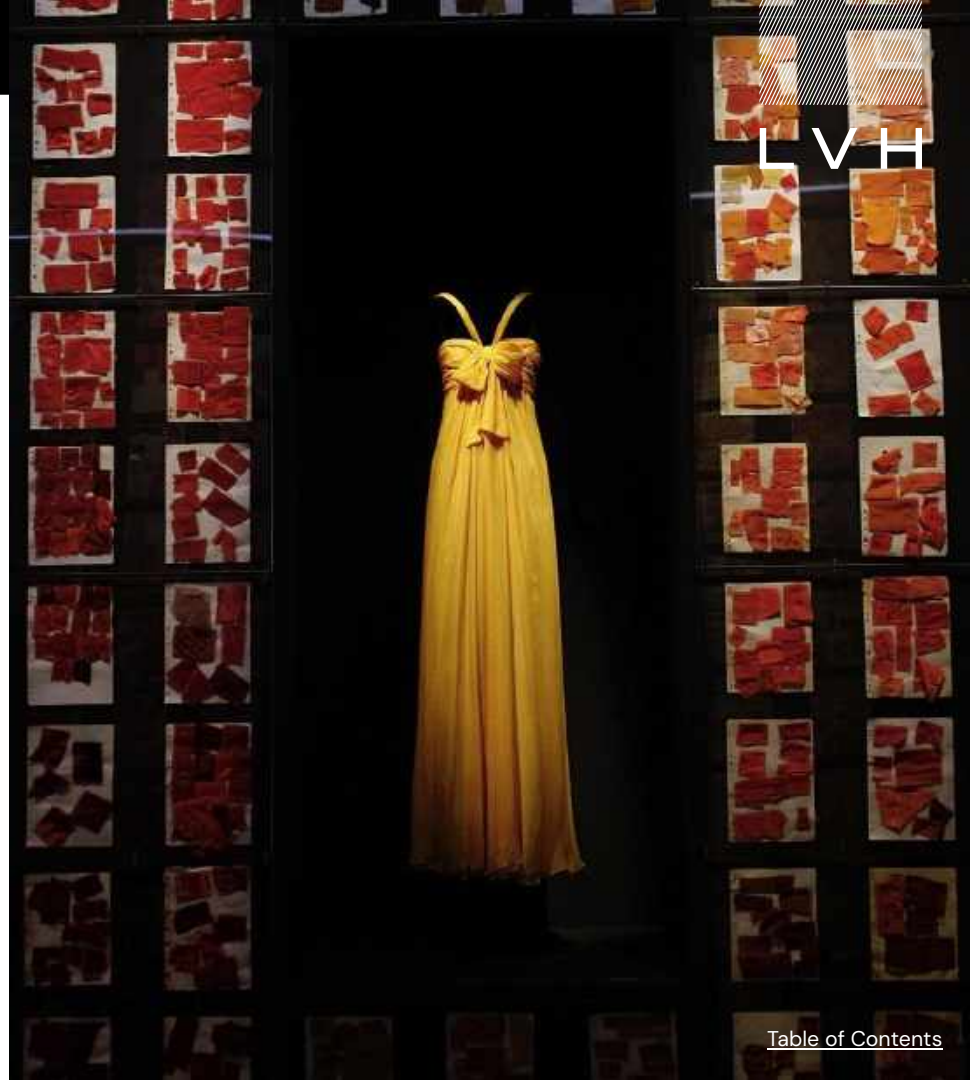

The mystical world of Gustave Moreau has remained enclosed behind the heavy curtains of his residence since his death in 1898. Never marrying and living with his parents until they passed away, the father figure of the Symbolist movement was terrified by the idea that the 14,000 works he had produced, sumptuously framed and thoroughly arranged on his walls would be scattered away. To protect and preserve his oeuvre, he decided to bequeath his house and everything in it to the State on the condition that everything remained as he left it. The place is a fantastic journey into the mind of an eminent representative of the tormented and extravagant fin de siècle aesthetic, one whose legacy still survives today!

YVES SAINT LAURENT MUSEUM

Yves Saint Laurent was one of Paris's greatest fashion icons. Catch a glimpse of his visionary world by entering the space where he outfitted elegant Parisians. Discreetly located along Avenue Marceau in the 16th Arrondissement, the 19th century mansion where Saint Laurent and his partner Pierre Bergé worked from 1974 to 2002 opened as the Yves Saint Laurent Museum in October 2017. Photos of Yves Saint Laurent's pieces worn by models and celebrities hang on the walls, complimenting his design sketches. He drew inspiration from artists such as Mondrian and Picasso and was inspired by his journeys to Morocco and cultures of sub-Saharan Africa, Russia, Spain, and Asia. Many haute couture ensembles on display could easily be worn today, bringing to mind one of his famous quotes: "Fashion fades, style is eternal."

THE MUSÉE MARMOTTAN MONET

The Musée Marmottan Monet, set in what was once a hunting lodge on the edge of the Bois de Boulogne, now houses an incredible selection of Impressionist paintings. In addition to Monet's work, the beautiful rooms house other Impressionist paintings by the artist's friends and contemporaries. These include paintings by Pissarro, Renoir, Sisley, Degas, and many others, as well as the world's largest collection of works by Berthe Morisot, a master Impressionist in her own right and sister-in-law to Edouard Manet. Passy and its pearls often go utterly unnoticed. If you have, time surely visit the museum.

MUSÉE DU QUAI BRANLY – JACQUES CHIRAC

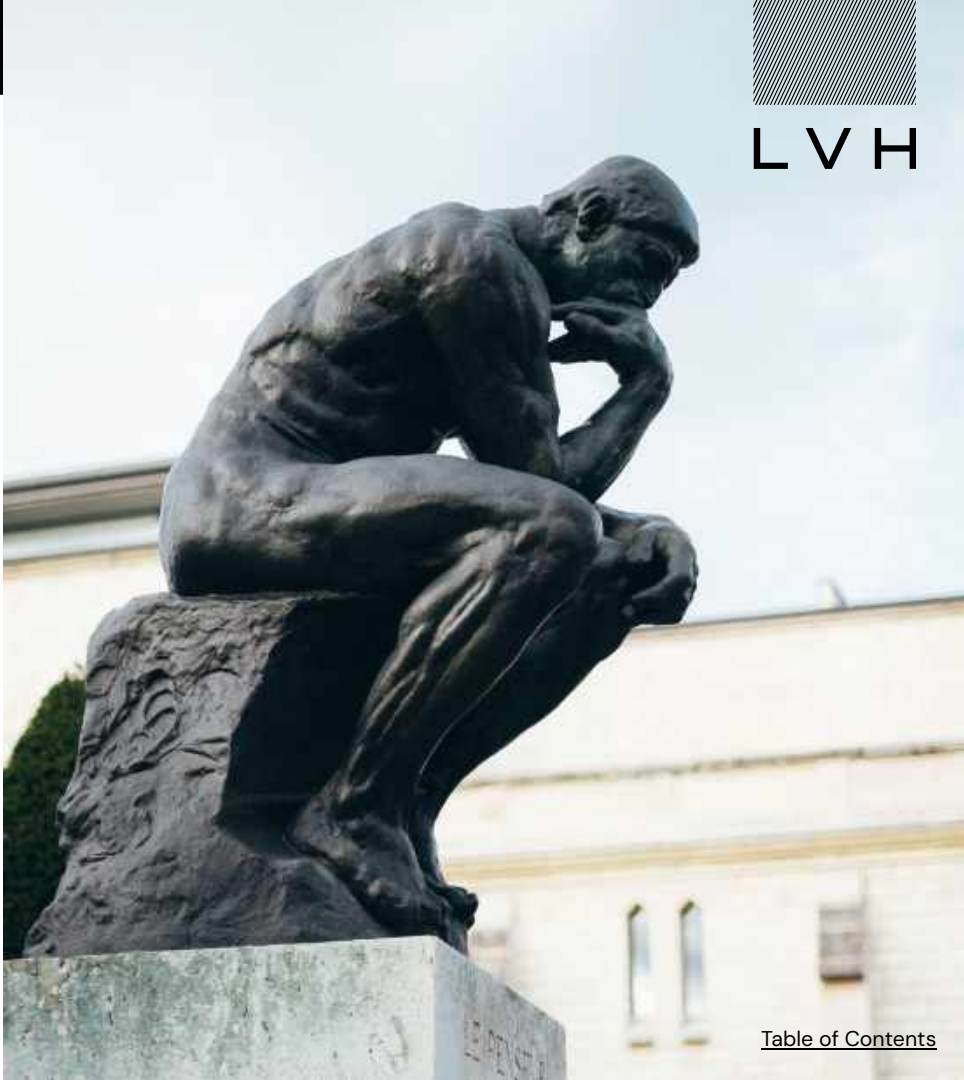

This museum is an attribute to the diversity of human culture. It's a highly inspiring overview of indigenous and folk art that spans four main sections – Oceania, Asia, Africa, and the Americas. Displayed in a refreshingly unorthodox interior without rooms or high walls, an impressive array of masks, carvings, weapons, jewelry, and more make up the body of the rich collection.

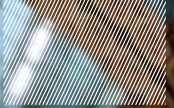

AUGUSTE RODIN MUSEUM

Sculptor, painter, sketcher, engraver, and collector Auguste Rodin donated his entire collection to the French state in 1908 on the proviso that it dedicate his former workshop and showroom, the beautiful 1730 Hôtel Biron, to displaying his works. This is where he lived and worked while in Paris. Rodin's artwork is not only installed in the mansion itself but also in its rose-filled garden – one of the most peaceful places in central Paris. The rose garden is a wonderful spot to contemplate his famous work, The Thinker. Other sculptural highlights are The Gates of Hell, the 180 figures of which comprise an intricate scene from Dante's Inferno; Rodin's marble monument to love, The Kiss; and the world's largest collection of works by Rodin's protégé and muse, Camille Claudel. On the first floor, in room 12, admire paintings by Van Gogh and Monet that belonged to Rodin. The ground floor 'Rodin at the Hôtel Biron' room, incorporates an eclectic collection of sculptures and curiosities acquired by Rodin and placed in the room where he worked in 1908.

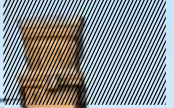

THE ORSAY MUSEUM (MUSÉE D'ORSAY)

The Orsay Museum truly is an Impressionist gem. Built as a train station in the 19th century's Belle Époque, Musée d'Orsay was transformed into a museum to house France's collection of 19th century paintings when the Louvre literally ran out of space. Here you can see the best works of Manet, Monet, Cézanne, Degas, Renoir, Sisley, and a stunning collection of van Goghs. There are about 2,000 paintings and 600 sculptures and other artworks on show, but it's not just quantity that counts. The museum is special because it houses the largest collection of Impressionist and post-Impressionist masterpieces worldwide.

THE LOUVRE MUSEUM

From Leonardo da Vinci to the Venus de Milo to Greek and Egyptian sculpture, the Louvre Museum in Paris has the most extensive art collection in the world. The Louvre covers more than 4,000 years of art history going back to ancient civilizations and the birth of art as we know it. You'll see the French masters and masterpieces of the Italian Renaissance. You'll even get to view the royal crowns of French emperors and kings. Definitely book Louvre-guided private tours with priority access and go directly to the most famous works of art. Once the three-hour tour concludes, you can continue exploring the Louvre Museum independently and at your own pace.

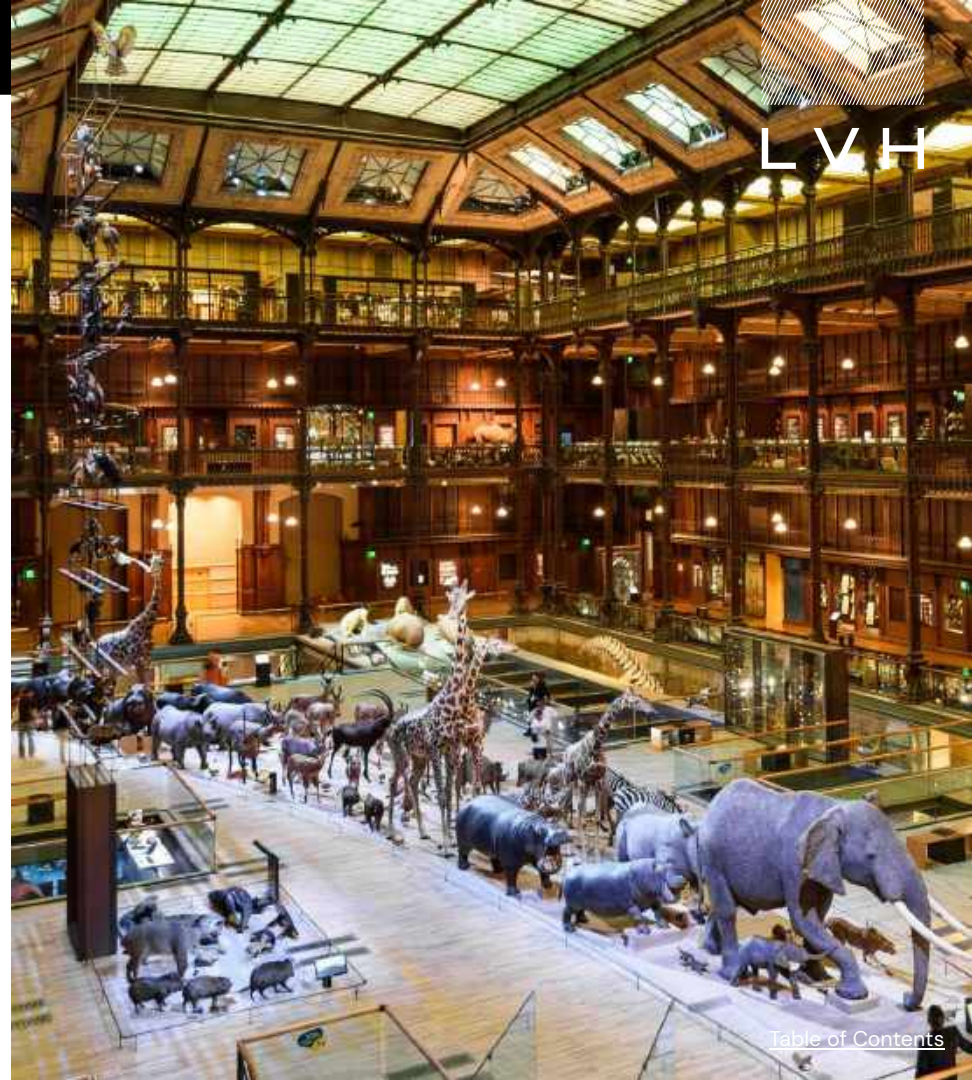

THE MUSÉE NATIONAL PICASSO

One of Paris's most treasured art collections is showcased inside the mid-17th century Hôtel Salé, an exquisite private mansion owned by the city since 1964. The Musée National Picasso is a staggering art museum devoted to Spanish artist Pablo Picasso (1881–1973), who spent much of his life living and working in Paris. The collection includes more than 5,000 drawings, engravings, paintings, ceramic works, and sculptures by the grand maître (great master), although they're not all displayed simultaneously.

NATURAL HISTORY MUSEUM

The centuries-old Natural History Museum and surrounding Jardin des Plantes have so much to offer that you can easily spend an entire day there. The museum's two main galleries are both impressive architectural gems offering all things natural sciences: from a great parade of animals – both stuffed and skeletons – to examples of insects, rocks, minerals, plants, and everything in between.

THE ARTS

Table of Contents

For centuries, Paris has been the leading light of the Western art world. Notable luminaries such as Van Gogh, Picasso, Monet, Dalí, Fitzgerald, Hemingway, Henry Miller and Anais Nin have all called Paris home, and their works can still be found throughout the city's many museums, galleries, attractions, salons, foundations, art houses and other art spaces. Today, art enthusiasts can explore the works of contemporary artists at venues such as Galerie Emmanuel Perrotin, Galerie Montmartre, and Camel Mennour, where you can discover everything from fine art, sculpture, architecture, literature, film, and fashion. With such a cornucopia of creative activities and art galleries, no list of the top venues can be exhaustive. Take the time to explore Paris and its wonders; there's something to suit all tastes.

DALÍ PARIS

Tucked away in the heart of Paris lies the largest private collection of Salvador Dalí's art: The Dalí Museum and Gallery, just off the famed Place du Tertre in Montmartre. Boasting 29 museum-sized sculptures, 15 monumental-sized sculptures, and 10 jeweled sculptures, the Dalí Universe Sculpture Collection is a testament to the genius of the Catalan artist, his iconographic images realized in three-dimensional form through the traditional lost wax method of bronze casting. In addition to the sculptures, visitors can also explore a fascinating array of photographs, glass works, prints, etchings, drawings, and paintings – all of them as intriguing as they are unmistakably Dalí.

MUSÉE NISSIM DE CAMONDO

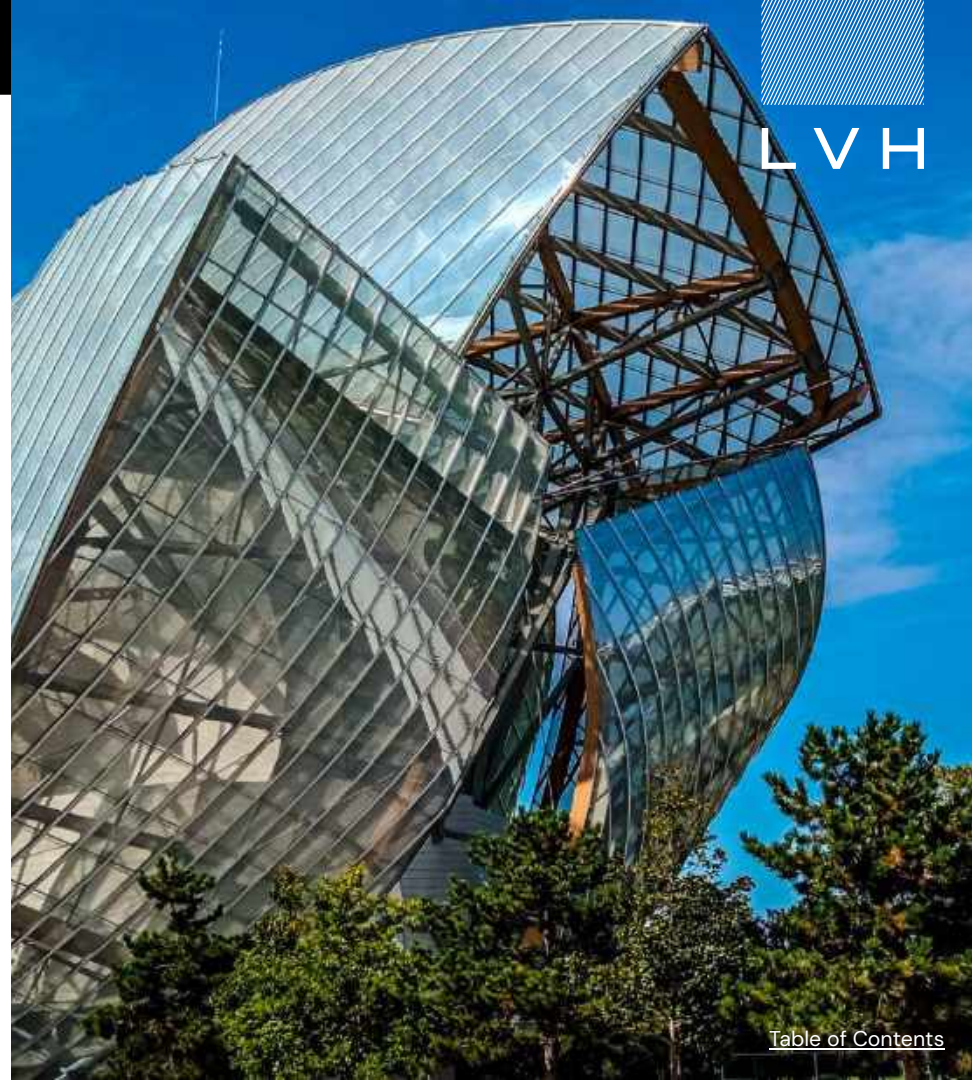

Situated right next to the Parc Monceau, the Musée Nissim de Camondo is a rarity among museums. Taking a step inside this impeccably maintained early 20th century mansion is like entering an aristocrat's private residence, not a museum. Count Moïse de Camondo, an Ottoman-born banker and art collector, had this beautiful house built in 1911 as a home for his extensive collection of 18th century French artwork and furniture. The interiors remain untouched, providing an exquisite glimpse into the past.

THE LOUIS VUITTON FOUNDATION

The architectural masterpiece, the Louis Vuitton Foundation, housed in the magnificent Frank Gehry building that stands proud at the edge of the Bois de Boulogne, invites you to a day of discovering the beauty of art and architecture. Take your time to appreciate the exterior of the building before stepping in. You'll soon realize that the visit is worthwhile only for the architecture. Pick up a map to guide you around, as this building is anything but straightforward – it's full of curves and meanders, and its exhibitions will transport you to different floors and levels.

TOKYO PALACE (PALAIS DE TOKYO)

Europe's largest center for contemporary creation, the Palais de Tokyo, is an effervescent, audacious and pioneering place, brimming with life and creativity. After its renovation in 2012, the Palais de Tokyo became Europe's largest contemporary art center, an inviting environment to explore and meet some of the greatest creators of our time. A journey through the history of artistic creation, the Palais de Tokyo is an exciting portal to the present and a window to the future.

LA GALERIE DIOR

At 30 Avenue Montaigne, Christian Dior's hôtel particulier was as "modest in scale as his dream was ambitious" when it opened in 1946 with only three workshops and 85 employees. However, within a few years it had grown, reaching neighbouring buildings. La Galerie Dior is a must-see destination for any fashion fan – this exhibition area takes you to the core of the Christian Dior Maison universe. Uncover the designer's inspirations and history through a series of mesmerizing displays in this remarkable museum.

FLUCTUART

Set afloat on the illustrious Seine, opposite the grandeur of the Grand Palais, the world's first floating urban art gallery beckons. Named in homage to Paris' timeless motto "Fluctuat nec mergitur," meaning "tossed by the waves but does not sink," the ephemeral art gallery pays tribute to international art icon Banksy and Paris' very own Invader, with a captivating, if small, permanent collection. If you wish, embark on an adventure of street art on the river.

THE ORANGERIE (MUSÉE DE L'ORANGERIE)

The Musée de l'Orangerie houses the famous Water Lilies by Monet. He donated them to the French people as a symbol of peace the day after the Armistice on November 11, 1918. In the same year, his close friend, Prime Minister Georges Clemenceau, invited him to exhibit his water lilies at the Orangerie. The eight monumental and curved panels were installed at the Orangerie in accordance with Monet's instructions in 1927, a few months after his death. It is simply one of the greatest artistic achievements of early 20th-century painting. These panels surround and envelop the viewer in an aquatic landscape dotted with water lilies, willow branches, trees, and reflections of clouds. Monet stated, "It gives the illusion of an infinite whole, of a wave with no horizon or shore."

59 RIVOLI

Behind the doors of 59 Rivoli, an extraordinary Parisian art space awaits. Providing a workshop, gallery, and squat for thirty artists, this creative hub is overflowing with talent. The walls are adorned with politically-charged collages, plants grow through cement blocks, and bright paintings dance on easels. A world away from the other buildings on the renowned Rue de Rivoli, 59 Rivoli is often decorated with posters, banners, and multimedia artworks hanging from the balconies. Enter this bewitching building and discover a world of art.

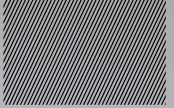

CENTRE POMPIDOU

Centre Pompidou – Europe's largest museum of modern art – opened its doors in 1977 and now boasts a collection of over 60,000 works from the surrealists, cubists, pop artists and other masters of the 20th and 21st centuries. Here you can explore the works of David Hockney, Picasso, Klee, Philippe Starck, Andy Warhol and many more. Although nestled in the middle of the medieval Marais quarter, the museum stands out like an alien amidst the hustle and bustle of Place Georges Pompidou outside. Here you will find street performers, mimes, jugglers, budding artists and musicians – and the iconic Stravinsky fountain – a whimsical water-spraying sculpture inspired by the great composer. Centre Pompidou is truly the place to be for discovering the greats of modern art and design.

Founded and owned by David Zwirner, an experienced art dealer from Cologne, the David Zwirner Gallery has been providing a platform for the world's greatest artists – from Jeff Koons, Yayoi Kusama, and Kerry James Marshall, to the artworks of Paul Klee, Donald Judd, and Diane Arbus – for over a quarter-century across four global locations – Paris, London, New York City, and Hong Kong – where Parisians can truly experience art from some of the greatest figures of our time.

GALERIE PERROTIN

The Parisian contemporary art scene has long held a fondness for Emmanuel Perrotin, who first opened his own "gallery" in a small apartment back in 1990. Fast forward to the present day, and the renowned tastemaker now operates 18 monumental spaces across the globe. His roster of esteemed artists is truly impressive, spanning pop-artists such as JR, Takashi Murakami and Maurizio Cattelan to conceptual giants like Elmgreen & Dragset and Laurent Grasso.

ATELIER DES LUMIÈRES

The Atelier des Lumières opened in April 2018 as Paris's first digital and immersive art space. A captivating inaugural exhibition showcasing the works of Klimt and Schiele was met with wild success. Its unique approach to introducing artists and their life's work, with digital and video presentations projected onto its walls, staircases, and industrial elements, makes it an extraordinary canvas. Dating back to 1835, this former foundry, used to supply iron for the French navy and railroads, now immerses visitors in light, art, and music. As they stand, sit, or roam around the space, they find themselves surrounded by captivating artwork and illuminated by digital projections.

THE VILLA LA ROCHE & THE MAISON JEANNERET

For architecture fans, in particular those who appreciate the genius of Modernist master Le Corbusier, a visit to Villa La Roche and its neighbour, Maison Jeanneret, is a must! These residential properties were the third Parisian commission of the Swiss architect, alongside Immeuble Molitor in the 16th Arrondissement and Villa Savoye in the suburb of Poissy, and were recently named a transnational UNESCO World Heritage site. Today, Villa La Roche houses a museum celebrating Le Corbusier's legacy, containing over 8,000 drawings, photographs and notes.

GALERIE KAMEL MENNOUR

Kamel Mennour's story is a captivating one. Hailing from Algeria and raised in the suburbs of Paris, Mennour was an economics student with a passion for photography. In 1999, he followed his dreams and opened a small gallery in Saint Germain des Prés. Here he showcased his favorite artists, including the likes of Annie Leibovitz, Larry Clark and Gregg Araki, to name a few – all of whom hadn't been represented in Paris yet. His determined pursuit of these renowned photographers soon became legendary. In less than five years, his gallery had become the go-to spot for all things contemporary photography in Paris.

FONDATION CARTIER

The Fondation Cartier pour l'Art Contemporain – often referred to simply as the Fondation Cartier – is a beacon of contemporary art. Its doors are always open to explore innovative topics and break down boundaries. It provides an eclectic and multidisciplinary platform that crosses all areas of contemporary creation, resulting in unprecedented collaboration between artists, scientists, philosophers, musicians and architects.

THE FONDATION GIACOMETTI

In June 2018, the Fondation Giacometti opened the Alberto Giacometti museum – more than 50 years after the iconic sculptor's death – to exhibit his extraordinary body of work. It included 350 sculptures, 90 paintings, and an astonishing 5,000 drawings, lithographs, and notebooks. This small and special place was chosen for its atelier-feel in the 14th Arrondissement, where the artist had resided for over four decades. Now, his beloved Walking Man has a fittingly memorable tribute.

CINÉMATHÈQUE FRANÇAISE

For any cinephile, the Frank Gehry-designed Cinémathèque Française is a veritable dream come true, holding an impressive collection of some of the most iconic props and costumes ever seen on screen. Among them, you'll find Elizabeth Taylor's and Vivien Leigh's costumes, as well as the iconic head of Mrs. Bates from 'Psycho'. Not to mention the retrospectives and showings of cult classics hosted by the cinema.

STREET ART

Paris, a place of creativity and life, is home to some of the most dynamic and vibrant street art seen in any city. From the mid-1980s when a boom in the number of street artists and artworks emerged, to now, Paris has grown an astounding street art culture, with inspiring murals scattered all around. The city's 20 arrondissements are adorned with Murs d'expression, and many renowned artists, such as Jef Aérosol, Zevs, Invader, Kashink, Blek Le Rat, Jérôme Mesnager and M.CHAT, have left their mark on this city, making it one of the best places to experience street art.

CAFÉS & TEA ROOMS

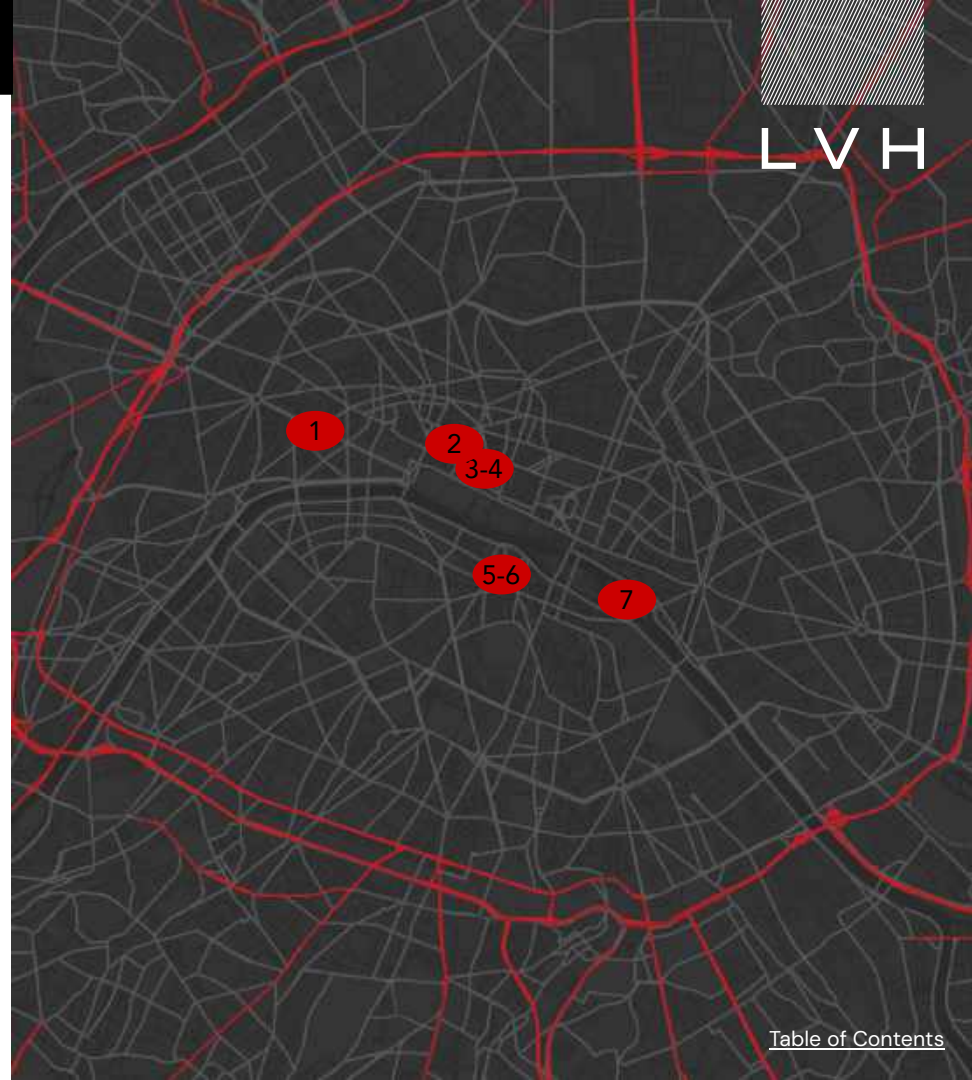

CAFÉS & TEA ROOMS

A croissant and coffee are what most people think of at a tea room or café, but when you visit a café in Paris, they are so much more. And what better way to discover the streets of Paris than by letting your taste buds be your guide? The selection of 'salons de thé' on the list includes specialty pastry shops, tea rooms and cafés. These elegant addresses are worth visiting rain or shine for breakfast or for what the French call goûter an official 'snack' time in the middle of the afternoon.

CAFÉS & TEA ROOMS

LADURÉE | TEA ROOM

Ladurée, a world-renowned French luxury patisserie, was founded in 1862. Ladurée offers an exquisite and original experience with iconic macarons and one feels utterly glamorous nibbling on a decadent pastry. The specialty store is an institution; it is for gourmands, whether you're craving a Religieuse, a La Fleur D'Oranger, or a St. Honoré Framboise. It's worth a visit for the presentation, the taste, and the atmosphere.

NINA'S | TEA HOUSE

There's no better place to stop for a cup of tea in Paris than Nina's. Selling and serving tea and cakes following Marie-Antoinette's favorite recipes, Nina's handpicks their ingredients straight from the King's Garden of Versailles (Le Potager du Roi), one of the oldest vegetable gardens in the world. Perched just behind the ritzy Place Vendôme, the tea room bears another unique connection to French royalty; the 17th century storefront which Nina's now calls home was originally a perfumery and was actually the official fragrance supplier to the Court of Versailles under King Louis XIV. The tea room, elegantly decorated in the old French style with tints of gold on its cabinetry and rose-cushioned chairs, makes drinking tea a royal affair.

ANGELINA | TEA ROOM

Created by a family of Austrian-Hungarian heritage, Angelina is the epitome of a grand tearoom. Think lovely ceilings, plenty of mirrors, exquisitely-painted walls, and delicate china sitting on marble tables. But more than for tea, this elegant address on the Rue de Rivoli – here since 1903 – is known for having some of the best hot chocolate in Paris. The old-fashioned chocolat chaud (called l'Africain) is served with whipped cream. The decadent drink is so delicious that Coco Chanel drank it daily while sitting at table N° 45.

LES DEUX MAGOTS | CAFÉ

Like its neighbor and rival, Café de Flore, this legendary spot represents the height of Parisian café culture. Its large corner terrace is perfect for people-watching, giving you a view of both the bustling Boulevard Saint Germain and the Église Saint-Germain-des-Prés, one of the oldest churches in Paris. With its iconic green and white awning, Les Deux Magots is renowned for being the literary café where great minds like Jean-Paul Sartre, Simone de Beauvoir, and Albert Camus once gathered. It was also a favorite of American expatriates like Julia Child and James Baldwin. The restaurant maintains its literary legacy today with the Deux Magots literary prize, awarded to a new French work annually since 1933.

CAFÉ DE FLORE | CAFÉ

Café de Flore is one of two legendary Parisian cafés in Saint-Germain (the other being its rival, Les Deux Magots, just across the street). As one of the oldest cafés in Paris, it was a favorite haunt of writers, philosophers, and artists like Georges Bataille and Pablo Picasso. The interior of this eternally elegant café has changed very little since World War II, and sitting down for a bite can feel like stepping back in time. The authenticity of the institution still shines through despite the flock of tourists eager to catch a glimpse of the Paris of yore.

BERTHILLON | ICE CREAM SHOP

This ice cream shop and salon on the small island of Île Saint-Louis has become a Paris summer staple. For nearly 70 years now, the Berthillon family has been serving sorbets, ice creams, and pastries out of the quaint wood-panelled storefront at 31 Rue Saint-Louis-en-l'Île. La glace here has been rated the best ice cream in Paris many times over, it is guaranteed that whatever you choose you won't be disappointed. If you're having a tough time choosing, try the wild strawberry sorbet, sorbet à la fraise des bois — it's how Berthillon first gained fame.

FRENCH TEATIME AU RITZ PARIS | TEA ROOM

There are two main kinds of afternoon teas at the Ritz, with or without champagne. There's the English-style served with finger sandwiches and cakes in the Bar Vendome and the French teatime (goûter à la française) that takes place in the Salon Proust. It is an evocative, wood-lined world unto itself. Cocoon yourself in the intimate, serene atmosphere of this observatory on the rich mix of life that pulses throughout the Ritz Paris. Enjoy the magic and skillfulness of pastry chef François Perret under the watchful portrait eye of Marcel Proust. Typical French biscuits and cakes are from Proust's era, where he sat by his favorite fireplace and enjoyed his legendary Madeleines, given center stage here.

APÉRO VENUES

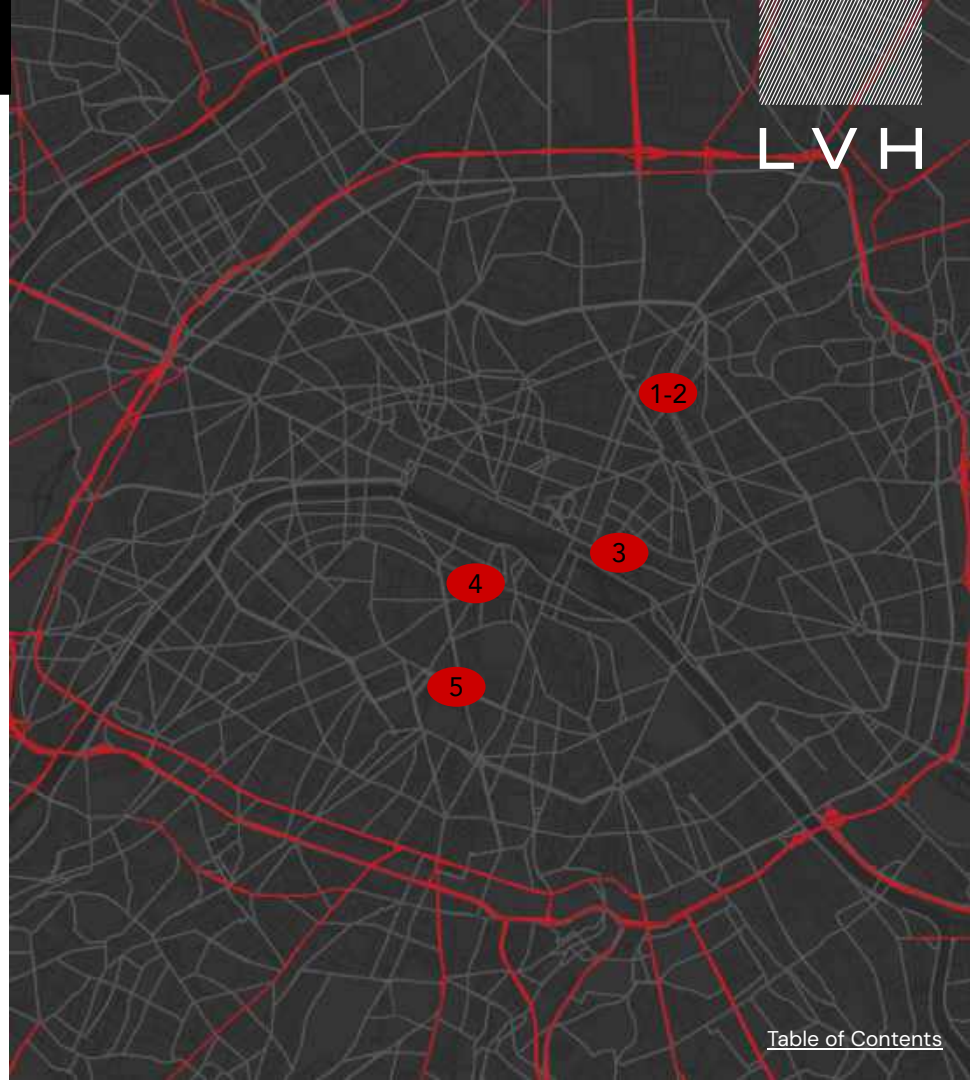

APÉRO VENUES

The French art of the apéro, or early evening drinks, is one of traditions the French uphold with near-religious obsession and you must experience it when in Paris. Usually occurring between 5–8 p.m., these “afterworks” are an opportunity for friends and co-workers to catch up over a glass of wine and a charcuterie board. Café terraces fill up in the French capital as Parisians seem to all finally be off the clock. Wind down with a cocktail, mocktail, beer, or wine — and maybe even take advantage of happy hour —at one of these great spots for an apéro.

APÉRO VENUES

1. Café A
2. Le Comptoir Général
3. Le Perchoir Marais
4. Dragon
5. La Coupole

CAFÉ A

Café A is hidden in a historic place in a former convent. It's an exceptional venue, unique in Paris, thanks to its cool interior and exterior spaces and a wide variety of events. Nestled in the Maison de l'Architecture in the 10th Arrondissement, this stylish bar, café, and restaurant hosts delicious brunches in a beautiful garden, live music in a decommissioned chapel, chic after-works with tasty meals, and a great atmosphere. If you appreciate architecture and good acoustics, then this is the place to go!

THE COMPTOIR GÉNÉRAL | COCKTAIL BAR

Whether you're up for a cocktail with friends or a Sunday brunch with family, this is definitely one of the coolest places! The décor makes you feel like you're on a sea-side holiday. The entrance looks like an old-fashioned hotel; the main room a fantasized version of the Caribbeans; on the patio, you're transported to a typical Mediterranean village square. At night, The Comptoir Général is perfect for an apéro or a last drink before you return to your residence (or continue partying!).

LE PERCHOIR MARAIS | ROOFTOP BAR

If not the best, Le Perchoir Marais definitely lands in the top three rooftop terraces in the city. Ideally located, this great rooftop bar and restaurant, open from June to October, is perched atop the BHV Marais, just across from the Hôtel de Ville, offering a spectacular view over the city roofs. A trendy but laid-back spot, Le Perchoir gets busy quickly on nice nights.

DRAGON | BAR

Dragon is the perfect spot to start or end your night. The décor is ultra-seductive – an onyx bar, soft lighting, red accents throughout, leopard print barstools, and even a fish tank in the back. The space itself is just as intimate and would be perfect for an impressive date night. Drinks are served with tasty bar bites – appetizers prepared in signature French-Asian fusion style.

LA COUPOLE | BRASSERIE

The brasserie La Coupole, in the Montparnasse neighborhood, provides an excellent opportunity to live (and taste) the narrative of Paris during the 1920s and 30s. During this magical time, the French capital was a magnet for expatriates in the artistic and literary community and La Coupole was one of their favorite haunts. If you haven't seen it yet, watch Midnight in Paris to really get a feel for this truly enchanting era. Opened in 1927, La Coupole was an immediate triumph. In its heyday, this famous Paris restaurant welcomed the likes of Jean Cocteau, Pablo Picasso, Ernest Hemingway, Anaïs Nin, and Edith Piaf, just to name a few. The grand dining room (now classified as a historical monument) is just divine for an apéro in the early evening. The atmosphere is special and the room is decorated in a wonderfully classic art deco design.

PALAIS GARNIER (OPERA GARNIER)

Palais Garnier, thanks to a starring role in Gaston Leroux's 1910 novel The Phantom of the Opera, it's the most famous opera house in the world. Most ballet and opera performances in Paris are held at Palais Garnier since The Paris Opera Ballet, the oldest national ballet company, to which any European and international ballet companies can trace their origins, and Paris Opera are housed and perform at Palais Garnier. The architecture and décor of Palais Garnier are at least as dramatic as the performances it hosts. Built by Charles Garnier in the late 1800s during Haussmann's renovation of Paris, the opera house stands out as a superb example of the Napoleon III style. Drawing on an eclectic and extravagant mix of architectural influences, every inch of the Opéra is covered with elegant textures, one-of-a-kind artworks, and gold. The sight of the opéra's sublime ceiling created by Chagall will be one of the magical moments of your evening. Walking into this exquisite opera house, you'll quickly get swept up in the luxury of it all, especially if you attend an opera or ballet.

LA COMÉDIE FRANÇAISE

Nestled in one of the prettiest parts of Paris, on the corner of the Palais-Royal and the famous terrace of the restaurant Le Nemours, this beautiful theater dates back to 1790, and since 1799, it's been home to the oldest active theater company in the world, La Comédie Française. This prestigious company, created by Louis XIV back in 1680, is the only French state theater to have a permanent acting troupe. Pieces performed also undergo a rigorous screening process, so needless to say, the performances here are of the highest level. Roughly 12 different pieces are performed each season, with daily performances from September to July.

MOULIN ROUGE

The famous Moulin Rouge, an iconic emblem of Paris' Belle Epoque, has been revered worldwide since its opening in 1889. Through its depiction in Toulouse-Lautrec's works, this legendary cabaret has come to stand for a time of risqué and provocative can-can dancing. Nowadays, the red windmill of Pigalle proudly hosts two captivating shows each night – although the traditional can-can may have been replaced by a modern version, the Moulin Rouge still radiates the same old charm. Delightful dinners and champagne-flowing festivities make for an unforgettable evening of enjoyment!

THE FOLIES BERGÈRE

The mythical Folies Bergère has achieved legendary status as one of the world's most renowned cabarets. Ever since the late 1880s, when the first revues were performed on its stage, the music hall has welcomed performers such as Charlie Chaplin, Josephine Baker, Charles Trénet, and Colette, inspiring many artists, writers, and film directors along the way. For Parisians, the Folies Bergère evokes the nostalgia of the Belle Epoque, along with images of the dancers sketched by Toulouse-Lautrec. It has also embraced more recent stars, such as Dita Von Teese, whose burlesque tour "The Art of the Teese" is considered the most successful of all time, as well as her subsequent variety show, "Glamonatrix".

THE NIGHT FLIGHT | COCKTAIL LOUNGE

At the trendy Night Flight bar, set on the ground floor of the picturesque Hotel Bachaumont in the fashionable Montorgueil district of Paris, bobos and jetsetters alike can come together to relax in the cozy and elegant atmosphere. Taking its name from the famous novel by French aviator Antoine de Saint-Exupéry, the bar is part of the renowned Experimental Group, a collective of Parisian mixologists who have spearheaded the cocktail revolution in the capital since launching their first bar, the Experimental Cocktail Club, a decade ago. Here in the Night Flight, a cool den of modernity and sophistication awaits.

LVH

EXPERIMENTAL COCKTAIL CLUB | SPEAKEASY

When Experimental Cocktail Club (ECC) opened its doors in 2007, it set the bar high for all the cocktail bars that followed in its wake. Now, its well-earned reputation precedes it and the place continues to be a hotspot, buzzing with Parisians and tourists alike, eager to try the inventive cocktails offered by the establishment. The staff are friendly and knowledgeable, more than happy to help guide you through the options and make suggestions tailored to your tastes.

BARS & SPEAKEASIES

LE SYNDICAT | COCKTAIL BAR & SPEAKEASY

The décor at Le Syndicat (the Union), an organization created to defend traditional French spirits such as Armagnac, Cognac, Calvados, and Chartreuse, is a modern, industrial setting softened with luxurious golden curtains and inviting, moody lighting. People flock here to sip exquisite and unique cocktails – crafted with the utmost skill and passion – that have earned the bar a spot on the exclusive World's 50 Best Bars list.

BARS & SPEAKEASIES

COPPERBAY | COCKTAIL BAR

CopperBay is a beacon in the cocktail scene, brightly standing out from the usual hidden speakeasies and cramped, dimly-lit hideaways. Its large windows, located in a small, dark street just off the Grands Boulevards, can easily be spotted – almost as if it were a lighthouse guiding you in. Once inside, a subtle yet unmistakable nautical theme will set the scene as you take in the beauty of the bar, while the CopperBay team expertly crafts the most tantalizing cocktails for the eyes and taste buds.

SERPENT A PLUME | SPEAKEASY

The renowned Serpent A Plume, nestled beneath the cobbled streets of the Place des Vosges and behind an exquisite store-cum-art gallery-cum-café, brings all of Paris's night-time creatures to its remarkable speakeasy bar. Boasting a unique décor designed by Vincent Darré, its design style fuses the 1970s with white vinyl and Aztec sculptures sourced from auction houses. Guests can delight in the captivating sounds of American rock classics, and even soak in a hot tub located under the staircase.

BARS & SPEAKEASIES

TIGER BAR A GIN | GIN BAR

Tucked away on Rue Princesse, Tiger gleams in the heart of the bustling Marché Saint Germain area – a tropical oasis with a glowing blue neon sign. Enter this haven and you will be welcomed by lush green palm prints, dangling light bulbs, and a wide selection of expertly crafted seasonal and fun gin cocktails. Let Tiger transport you to a tropical paradise, and bask in the sun as you sip on one of its delightful sunny classics. This is not your ordinary cocktail bar – find out for yourself why Tiger is worth the trip, especially if you're a fan of gin!

LE CAVEAU DE LA HUCHETTE | JAZZ CLUB

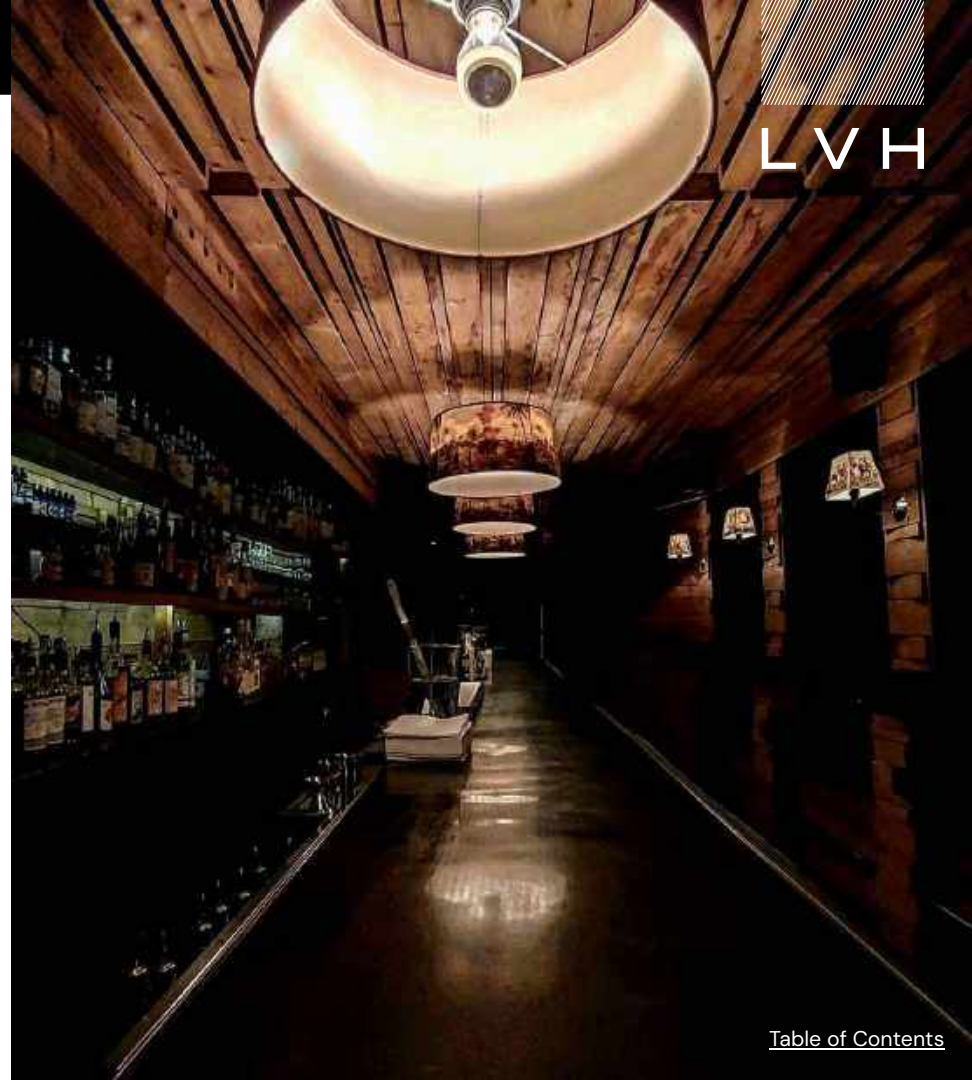

Going back centuries to the 1500s, Le Caveau has a storied history as a meeting place for the Templars and Freemasons. This legendary jazz club gained prominence in 1949 as the place to be for iconic American musicians like Lionel Hampton, Count Basie, Art Blakey, Sidney Bechet, and Bill Coleman, as well as leading French jazz musicians like Claude Luter and Claude Bolling. Most recently, Le Caveau was put back on the map after Ryan Gosling's breathtaking piano solo featured in the Oscar-winning film La La Land. Tourists and locals alike can still come and enjoy lively performances from a variety of big bands and jazz acts that grace the club's stage.

BARS & SPEAKEASIES

CASTOR CLUB | SPEAKEASY

Explore the hidden depths of Paris with a visit to one of the most renowned speakeasies just off the Boulevard Saint Germain. The inviting ambience features dark wood plank walls, red velvet stools, and dimmed lighting to give you a comforting and cozy atmosphere. The talented bartenders and mixologists will delight you with creative concoctions like the Turkish Delight, Chirac 95, or the Aye Aye Captain. Pull up a barstool and have long conversations with friends, or head to a secluded alcove for intimate tête à têtes. Don't miss out – this beloved hangout is especially crowded on the weekends with the city's hippest crowd coming to sip great cocktails and dance the night away.

LE BUS PALLADIUM | CLUB

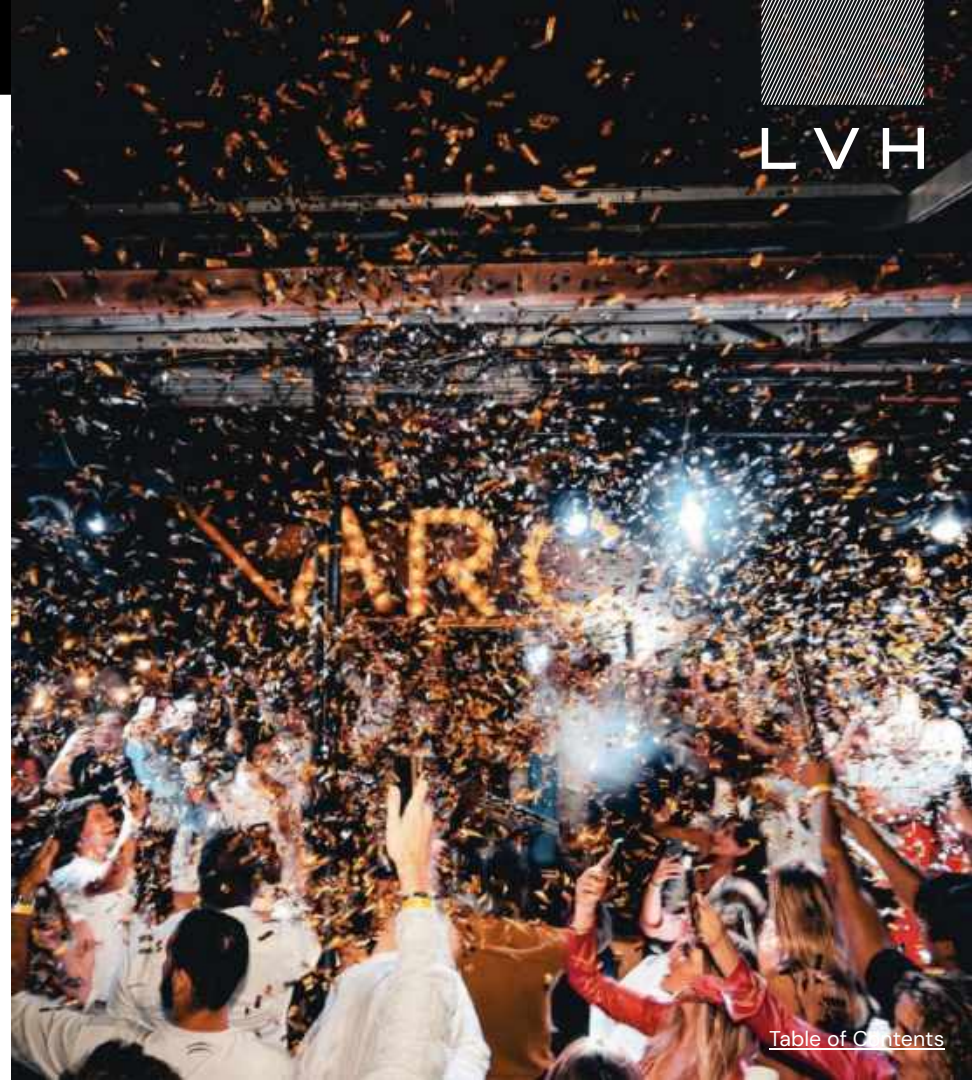

This iconic spot has a rich history of extraordinary beginnings. Dating back to the early 20th century, the place used to be a café-concert open all night, and then a jazz club, which welcomed the likes of Louis Armstrong to jam. It wasn't until the 1960s that the venue made a name for itself on the nightlife scene, when the owner created a shuttle bus system to enable people from the suburbs to easily access Paris and its legendary nightlife. Thus, the "Bus" was born. The Bus Palladium was a hot spot for a variety of artists, authors and painters, as well as some of the world's biggest musical acts such as The Beatles, Johnny Halliday and Téléphone. It was even mentioned in a song by none other than Serge Gainsbourg. Truly, this spot is a place of musical magic!

L'ARC | NIGHTCLUB

At L'Arc Nightclub in Paris, you can experience the ultimate VIP treatment in an incredibly luxurious setting. Not everyone is privileged enough to enter this exclusive venue beneath the Arch – only the crème de la crème. When you step inside, it's like walking into a wonderland of gold during the day and a vibrant rainbow of neon at night. The mirrored ceiling reflects a kaleidoscope of colours, creating a mesmerising ambience. You can lounge on the comfy booths and enjoy the atmosphere, without having to worry about overhearing other people's conversations.

BOUM BOUM | NIGHTCLUB

Feel the rhythmic beat of "Boum Boum", a cleverly-crafted symphony of sound and sight that electrifies like a chic club while exuding the energy and enthusiasm of a concert! Conceived by Charles Tassin, the decor transports you to a neo-70s Parisian flat. Enjoy a cocktail, lounge in the terrace, and immerse yourself in the tribal electro vibes – a unique experience you won't soon forget!

MONSIEUR CIRQUE | NIGHTCLUB

Be swept away to a place of pure enchantment with Monsieur Cirque Paris – a one-of-a-kind circus-themed club. From the extravagant stars and brilliantly-wrought design to the vibrant walls and artfully-crafted décor, this wonderland is sure to fill you with joy. Marvel at the elaborate designs of circus acts across the stage, as feathers of every color sparkle in the light and create a breathtaking atmosphere. Every aspect of the club is designed with your pleasure and comfort in mind – guaranteeing a magical and unforgettable experience.

RASPOUTINE | NIGHTCLUB

The majestic grandeur of Club Raspoutine's Baroque-style architecture and exquisite red décor creates an exclusive and elite atmosphere. This former Russian cabaret, established in 1965, swiftly rose to fame and earned a reputation as one of Paris' most sought-after clubs. The plush velvet alcoves have seen countless tales come to life since its inception. Step inside Club Raspoutine and you will find a set of mysterious rooms, characterized by a vibrant and festive ambience, that only a select few are privy to. It is the ideal haven for those seeking a raucous night out, where privacy is guaranteed and the sound is always cranked up to full volume!

MEDELLIN | NIGHTCLUB

In the trendy 8th Arrondissement, just off Avenue Marceau, lies the prestigious private club Medellin, opened in November 2018. Every night, the atmosphere in this South American-inspired venue is filled with Colombian references, from the decor to the cocktails. Enjoy a live concert with a Latin flavor, before the night transitions to upbeat tunes from resident and guest DJs. Transport yourself to the world of Narcos with this unique "Casa de Noche", an exclusive destination that calls for a classy and elegant dress code. To guarantee entry, reservations are highly recommended.

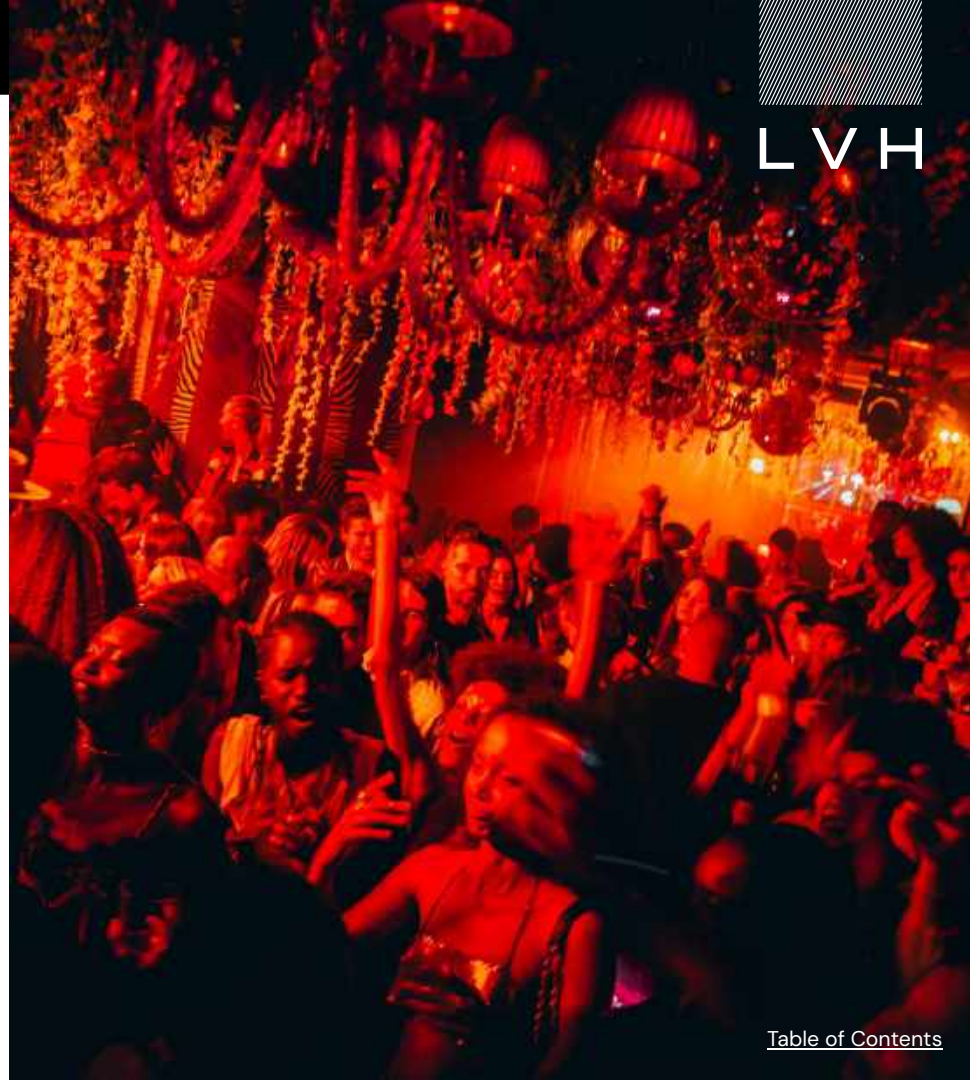

LVH

LE MATIGNON | NIGHTCLUB

If you seek a cosy, inviting atmosphere akin to a house party, you will surely love the prestige of Le Matignon, nestled in the 8th Arrondissement, directly across the Gardens of the Théâtre Marigny in the centre of Paris' Golden Triangle. With its modern, refined design conceived by Charles Tassin, Le Matignon is perfect for a sunny breakfast on the terrace, lunch under the veranda, or a romantic dinner in golden, dimmed lighting. From 11 p.m., Le Matignon's club and bar opens its doors for a night of dancing that transcends the affluent crowd of Paris and worldly travellers, enveloped in a temple of Parisian nightlife and luxury.

HÔTEL BOURBON | NIGHTCLUB

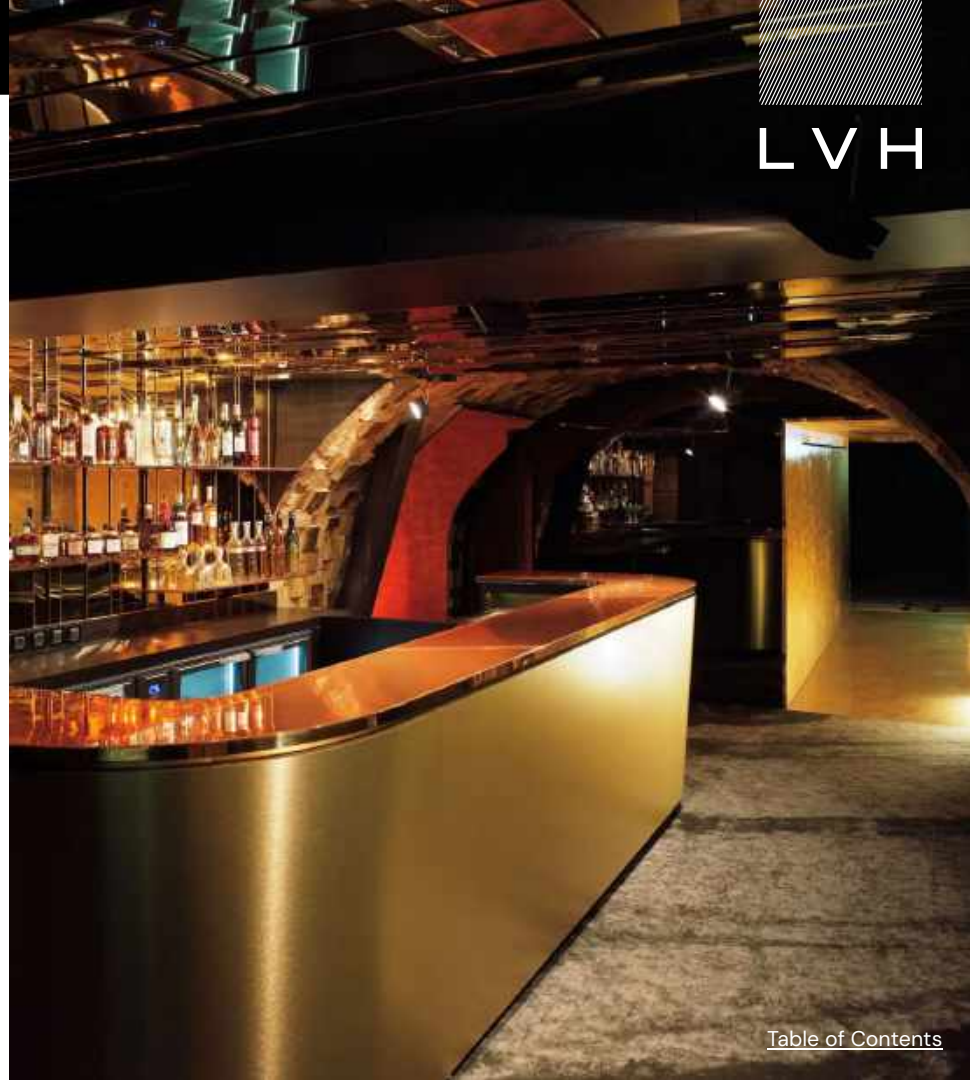

Situated in the once-scruffy 10th Arrondissement of Paris, Hôtel Bourbon is a velvet-curtained hideaway that bills itself as a “hotel for insomniacs”, although it is in fact a nightclub created by the Savoir Vivre lifestyle group. Formerly a synagogue, its ancient woodwork is still present, and it has quickly become the go-to destination for the media, film, music and fashion crowds. Notable guests have included Emily Ratajkowski, The Weeknd, Georgia May Jagger and Kid Cudi, while Prada, Miu Miu and Nike have all hosted company events at Hôtel Bourbon. However, with a maximum capacity of 200 and no entrance fee, getting in can be quite a challenge, so be sure to dress to impress!

SILENCIO | NIGHTCLUB

Silencio, one of the most sought-after clubs in the City of Light, is the stamp of approval for It-girl (or boy) dreams. Its underground labyrinth of flora and fauna-covered walls bedecked with golden highlights, the subdued bar, 50s-style fumoir, cinema and dance floor, was crafted by the masterful hands of filmmaker David Lynch, taking up the mantle of the famed Factory. As the walls of the club beckon, so do its creative offerings – experimental film projections, DJ sets from the likes of Cerone or Cassius, and even concerts – beckoning one and all to a night of mystique and bliss.

NEW MORNING | MUSIC & PERFORMANCE VENUE

Legendary among Parisian jazz clubs, New Morning boasts a spacious loft adorned in minimal decor on the Rue des Petites-Écuries. Jazz and blues fans flock to this mecca for memorable performances, from Prince's impromptu gigs to Dizzie Gillespie's jam sessions and Skatalites' ska dubs. The iconic venue also welcomed Taj Mahal, Art Blakey, and George Russell, among others. What's more, New Morning's owner dubbed it an "enclave of liberty" – all thanks to Eglal Fahri, who, at the ripe age of 60, opened the club in 1981. After four decades, it remains a beloved and revered music space in the capital.

LE PANIC ROOM | NIGHTCLUB

Tucked away in the bustling streets of Rue Oberkampf, Le Panic Room serves as a unique mecca where the chic and the edgy come together to create a space with some of the trendiest bars in Paris. This contemporary club offers a laid-back, punk-rock meets hip-hop atmosphere that you won't be able to resist. Despite the classic décor, this venue is full of unexpected surprises. Prepare yourself for the ultimate experience at one of the tiniest and hippest venues around.

KONG | BAR & RESTAURANT

Perched atop the chic Kenzo building, this fashionable bar and restaurant offers a breathtaking bird's-eye view of the Seine, the Pont Neuf, and Rue de Rivoli. Step inside and enjoy a tantalizing fusion of Japanese and French cuisines, with menu highlights such as poke bowls and tataki, and decadent desserts like mille-feuille. Experience a serene lunchtime atmosphere, then see the evening lights up with cocktails, a DJ, and fashionable patrons. This stylish eatery gained renown when it was featured on Sex and the City.

WANDERLUST | NIGHTCLUB

Nestled in the stylish Cité de la Mode et du Design, the Green Goblin stands out like a beacon of nightlife on the banks of the Quai d'Austerlitz. Conceived and built by the architectural firm Jakob+Macfarlane, the club is renowned for its dazzling atmosphere and generous terrace, where DJs spin the freshest house and disco tunes until the early hours of the morning.

ATTENDING THE VERSAILLES MASQUERADE BALL

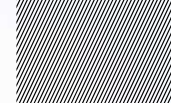

The magnificent Château de Versailles stands unparalleled in its grandeur. It was first transformed from a hunting lodge to a palace in 1682 by Louis XIV, making it one of the most impressive royal residences in Europe. For a night of unforgettable fun and extravagance, come experience the Versailles Masquerade Ball, held on the palace grounds in late July. Dressing in Marie Antoinette-style dresses and 18th century gentlemen's attire – complete with masks – will give you the feel of one of Louis XIV's lavish banquets. If you find yourself in Paris in June, don't miss this extraordinary masquerade – costumes are available for rent or purchase from Versailles' specialist outlets.

FRENCH CAVIAR TASTING AT MAISON PRUNIER

Founded by Alfred Prunier in 1872, Maison Prunier is the only shop in the world that produces and sells its own caviar. Located in the heart of Paris facing the Madeleine Church, Prunier Victor Hugo and Prunier Madeleine invite caviar lovers to experience the flavors of this exquisite product. Hosted by a French caviar specialist, you will discover three unique selections of the house, each one revealing its own tastings notes and flavors, crafted by Prunier producers in the Aquitaine region. Step into the art deco atmosphere of Prunier Victor Hugo – the iconic destination for Parisian gastronomy, where Yannick Alléno, a Michelin-starred culinary virtuoso, serves as the new ambassador of the caviar house and welcomes aficionados, connoisseurs and enthusiasts alike. Come explore the world of Prunier caviar – an unforgettable experience!

A VIP DAY AT VAUX-LE-VICOMTE

Vaux-le-Vicomte, the tragic inspiration for the grandeur of Versailles, was the brainchild of the 26-year-old Nicolas Fouquet – Louis XIV's finance minister – who had the vision to transform a humble chateau into a spectacular palace encircled by ravishing gardens. This exquisite masterpiece soon became a renowned epicenter of French culture, playing host to the very best in art, literature, and entertainment until the jealous Sun King laid eyes on it. Truly, the history of French chateau and garden design began long before Versailles.

THE ROYAL STABLES OF THE CHÂTEAU DE VERSAILLES

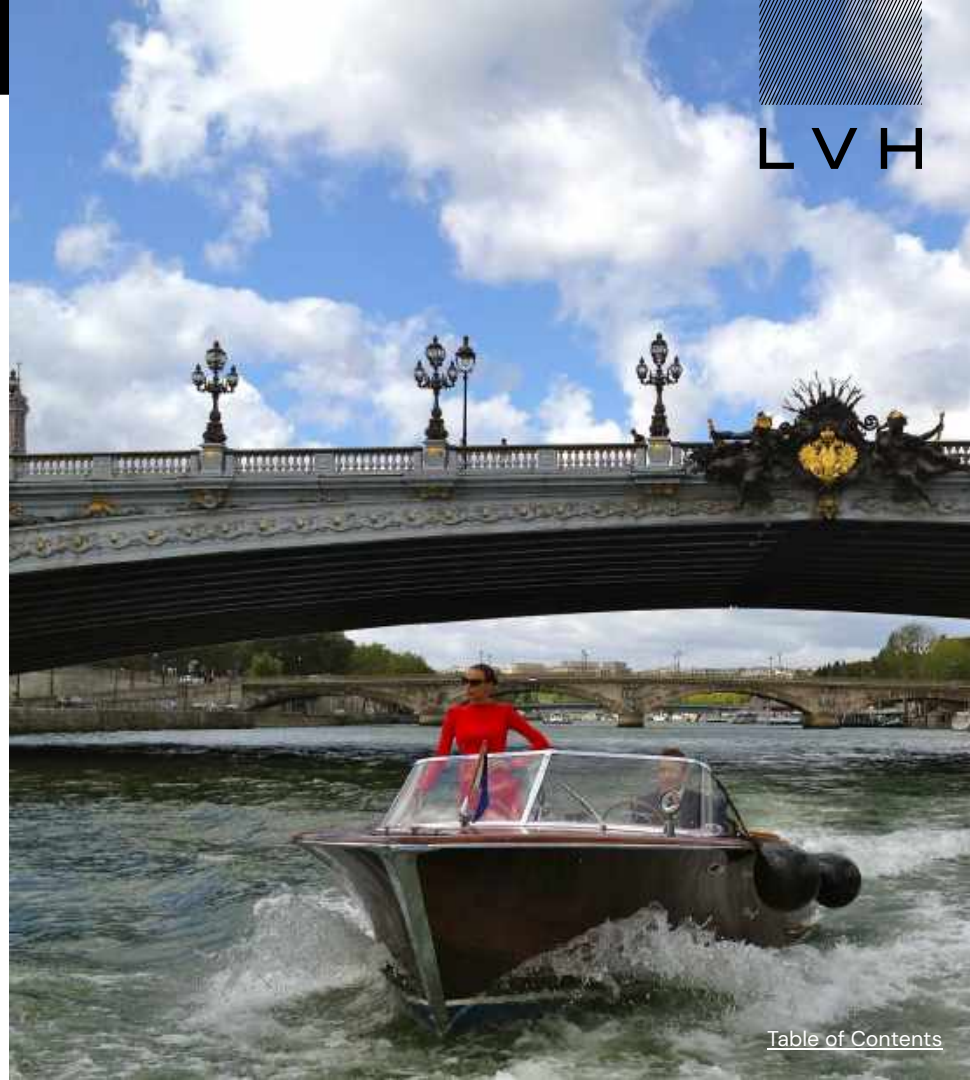

Two centuries later, the majestic stables of Versailles returned to their original mission and since 2003, they have been home to the National Equestrian Academy, under the direction of the celebrated director of equestrian theatre, Bartabas. Renovated by the esteemed French architect Patrick Bouchain in a modern style while preserving the original features created by Mansart, the Royal Stables were commissioned by King Louis XIV to be the largest royal stable ever constructed. Enjoy an exclusive guided tour and explore this marvellous site in a personal atmosphere, away from the palace bustle.

BASTILLE DAY

In France, Le Quatorze Juillet (Bastille Day, July 14) is celebrated with parades, fireworks and dances, but few of them take place at Place de la Bastille. The Bastille Day military parade, for instance, starts from the Arc de Triomphe, then follows a route along Champs-Élysées to Place de la Concorde. On Bastille Day evening, fireworks occur on and around the Eiffel Tower.

ROCK EN SEINE

Celebrating almost two decades and an unwavering crowd of faithfuls, the music festival Rock en Seine needs no introduction. More than 100,000 music lovers gather in the capital each year at the Parc National de Saint-Cloud to enjoy live concerts across the four stages. All styles of rock 'n roll genre are represented, from punk to metal, via pop-rock, new-wave and Britpop. Major international bands play here alongside some of the freshest talents of tomorrow. The festival has seen musicians and bands like Arctic Monkeys, Massive Attack, Cypress Hill and Oasis, Stromae, Nick Cave & The Bad Seeds, Tame Impala, Kraftwerk, to name a few.

LOLLAPALOOZA PARIS

Introduced in 1991 by Perry Farrell, lead singer of the rock band Jane's Addiction, Lollapalooza has quickly become a benchmark for American festivals. After a number of tours in North America, Lollapalooza came to France. This festival, considered one of the biggest in the world, takes place at the Hippodrome de Longchamp for two musical days that will satisfy festival-goers. An occasion for the French public and tourists to discover exceptional live performances of international artists such as The Strokes, Twenty One Pilots, Martin Garrix, Orelsan, and others.

THE CÉSAR AWARDS CEREMONY

A must-attend event for cinematic achievement, the César Awards ceremony has been rewarding the best of French cinema since 1976. It is an unmissable highlight on the French film industry calendar. It is nationally televised award ceremony held in Paris each year in February. More than four decades later, the ceremony is seen as a celebration of diversity in terms of its nominees and the subjects they tackle on the big screen. The César Award is considered the highest film honor in France – the French film industry's equivalent to the Molière Award for theater, and the Victoires de la Musique for music. The after event to the Césars Awards ceremony sees many cinema nobels for a sit-down dinner at Le Fouquet's, host to the César's after-show soirée.

PARIS FASHION WEEK

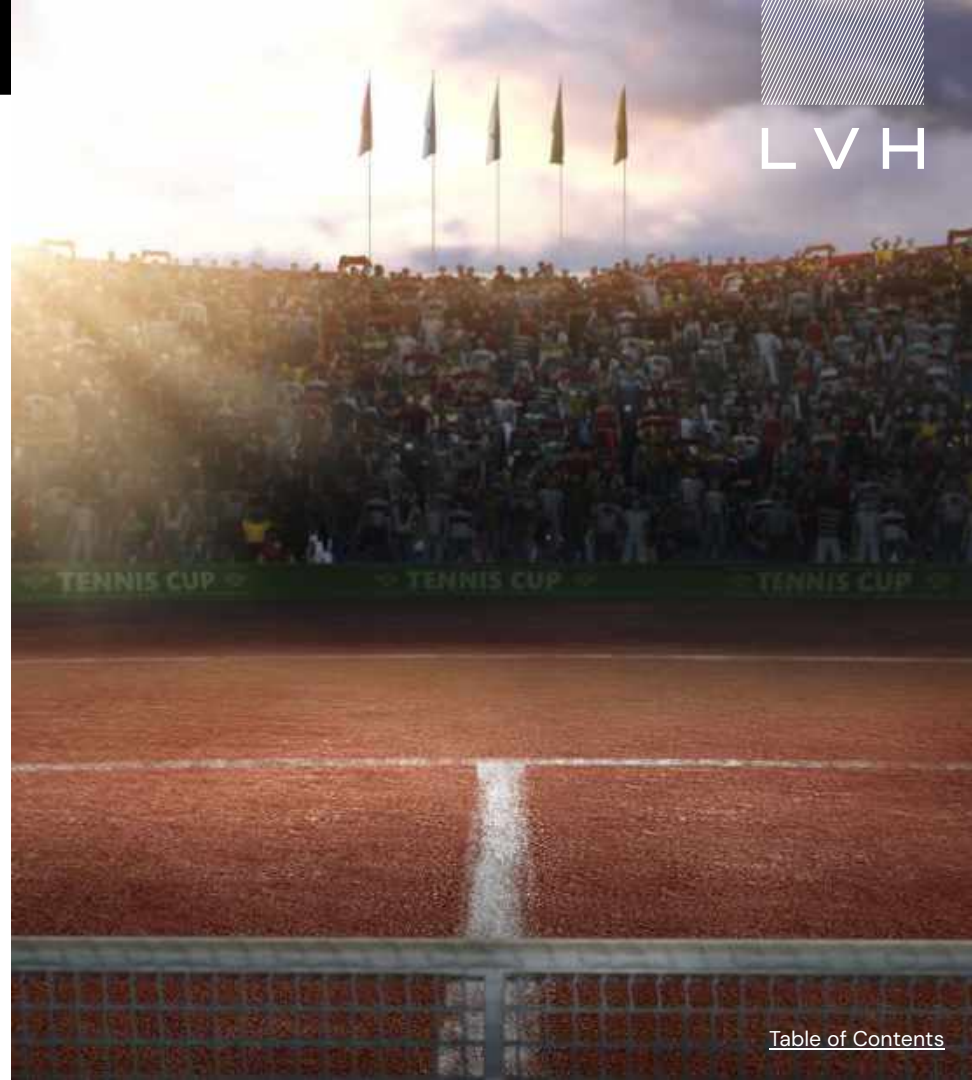

Even though the world's first 'fashion week' took place in New York in 1943, Paris still claims its throne as the world's style capital, with aficionados flocking en masse to its annual fashion weeks. The most desirable and significant event in the fashion industry is the final of the four most important fashion weeks in the world – fashion weeks in London, New York, and Milan. Unfortunately, only a few people can visit the shows – famous fashion designers, buyers, showbiz stars, and a separate media category. Head to runway sites like the Grand Palais or the Espace Eiffel and book a place in the fashion show of the current season.

ROLAND GARROS

One of the world's four grand slam tennis tournaments, Roland Garros is always in high demand. The highest-profile matches take place on the Philippe Chatrier court, although you can also catch some thrilling encounters, with a better view, on the Suzanne Lenglen and Simonne Mathieu courts.

PARIS PRIDE (MARCHE DE FIERTÉS)

Paris Pride, or the Marche des Fiertés, is one of the world's biggest and best celebrations of its sort. The carnival procession is joyous, there's a phenomenal concert line-up, and hundreds and hundreds of thousands turn up to march in defence of equal rights for the LGBTQI+ community each year. As the evening draws in, the party continues at clubs and bars throughout the capital.

PITCHFORK PARIS

Imported from Chicago, this eclectic music festival seems to get better every year. Spread over several stages and held in a former slaughterhouse, the Grande Halle, Pitchfork invites the cream of international pop, hip-hop and alternative rock to the capital. Past headliners have included everyone from Skepta and the National to M.I.A. and the Knife. If it's best new music, it'll probably be at Pitchfork.

PARIS MARATHON (MARATHON DE PARIS)

The Schneider Electric Marathon de Paris offers a unique opportunity to make the city yours by participating in one of the most prestigious races over the legendary 26 miles and 385 yards (42.195 kilometers) distance. The Schneider Electric Marathon de Paris is now one of the biggest marathons in the world, as much for the size of its field as performances of its runners. Each finisher goes home with incredible memories. Tens of thousands of runners tackle the most fabled long-distance discipline in athletics. This race, taking in the Champs Elysées, the Bois de Vincennes and Boulogne, offers an incomparable backdrop, with spectacular views and landmarks all along the route. The marathon combines personal challenge with the chance to discover one of the world's great cities.

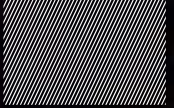

LE TOUR DE FRANCE

The Tour de France is an annual long-distance bicycling event, which climaxes after 2,175 miles (3,500 kilometers) in the City of Light. Want to see your cycling heroes crossing the finish line on the Champs-Élysées? Then don't miss this spectacular cycling event taking place in July.

THE ROLEX PARIS MASTERS

The Paris Masters is an annual tennis tournament for male professional players. It is played indoors at the AccorHotels Arena in the Bercy neighborhood. The event is part of the ATP Tour Masters 1000 on the Association of Tennis Professionals (ATP) Tour. Ilie Năstase, Andre Agassi, Roger Federer, and Novak Djokovic are the only players to have ever won both Parisian tournaments (Bercy and the French Open).

PARIS JAZZ FESTIVAL

The Paris Jazz Festival takes place annually in the beautiful Parc Floral de Paris. This event attracts fans of jazz and African-American music. It is one of the largest music festivals in the country, where you can see performances of world-renowned musicians.

SACRÉ-COEUR BASILICA (BASILIQUE DU SACRÉ-COEUR)

Work on this enormous mock Romano-Byzantine edifice began in 1877 and it was completed in 1914. It has become one of the best known Paris churches due to its prominent location and brilliant white color. It was commissioned after the nation's defeat by Prussia in 1870, voted for by the Assemblée Nationale and built from public subscription. The interior boasts lavish mosaics while the white stone used to build Sacre-Coeur has an amazing self-cleaning property. When it rains the stone release a white chalky substance that acts like a fresh coat of paint. There's no better view of Paris than from atop the steps of Sacre-Coeur. In fact, because it's built on the hill of Montmartre, it's the highest point in Paris (higher than the Eiffel Tower).

ARC DE TRIOMPHE

The Arc de Triomphe of the Place de l'Etoile is one of the most famous monuments in Paris. It is situated at the center of the Place Charles de Gaulle (initially Place de l'Étoile), at the beginning of the Champs-Élysées. The Arc de Triomphe honors those who fought and died for France during the French Revolution and the Napoleonic Wars, with the names of all French victories and generals inscribed on its inner and outer surfaces. Under its vault lies the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier from the First World War. The monument was designed by Jean Chalgrin in 1806 on the orders of Napoleon and inaugurated in 1836 for the sixth anniversary of the Three Glorious. Fifty meters high, 45 meters wide and 22 meters deep, it was the largest triumphal arch in the world before the construction of the one in Pyongyang in 1982. Its design was inspired by the Roman Arch of Titus.

THE EIFFEL TOWER

The Eiffel Tower is an iron tower in the Champ de Mars. Its name comes from the engineer Gustave Eiffel. Built in 1889 for the International Exhibition, it has become a cultural icon of France and one of the most recognizable structures in the world. With more than 7 million visitors annually, it is the most visited, paid monument in the world. The Eiffel Tower has been a historical monument since June 24, 1964.

HÔTEL DES INVALIDES

Part of the Parisian skyline since the reign of Louis XIV, the Hôtel des Invalides can be seen from almost anywhere in Paris thanks to its immediately recognizable golden dome. Built in 1670 on the orders of Louis XIV to shelter sick, wounded, and retired veterans, the landmark still serves this purpose today, now also housing several museums, the offices of a few high-ranking military officials, and a military pantheon including Napoleon's tomb.

PALAIS ROYAL

Palais Royal is not easy to spot, surrounded as it is by other famous buildings and since it's now used for government offices. Or maybe it's because it's right across from the Louvre and visitors are distracted by the fame and beauty of the museum. But, hidden from the casual passerby are the wonderful gardens. Stroll through the galleries that border the garden, walk the flowery paths, and sit by one of the most pleasant fountains in the city. It's a relaxing break from the hustle and bustle surrounding the Louvre.

ÉGLISE ST-EUSTACHE CHURCH

Église St-Eustache in Paris is a highly unappreciated asset on the city's church scene. Gothic flying buttresses, rose windows, flamboyant vaulting, and a Renaissance facade rivaling that of Notre Dame – St-Eustache is truly a masterpiece of late Gothic architecture. It's also considered a mecca for sacred music, with composers like Verdi, Liszt, and Berlioz choosing to play their compositions here to benefit from the spectacular acoustics. It took a long time to complete as it was built over a 100-year period between 1532–1632. Its gigantic church organ, with 8,000 pipes, is the largest in France.

PONT NEUF

It is quite ironic and puzzling that the oldest standing bridge in Paris should be called the Pont Neuf (new bridge). When constructed in the early 17th century, it was, of course, a new bridge, hence the name, but its precursors have long since been demolished. A span of five arches crosses the Seine from the Left Bank to the western end of the Ile de la Cité, and another span of seven arches joins the island to the Right Bank. When completed in the early 17th century, the bridge was unusual in that it was the first in the city not to have houses built upon it. It was also fitted with pavements so pedestrians could be protected from the roadway filth and the hazards of passing horse-drawn carriages. The venerable bridge and the oldest surviving bridge in the city, the Pont Neuf is also, at 238 meters, the third longest.

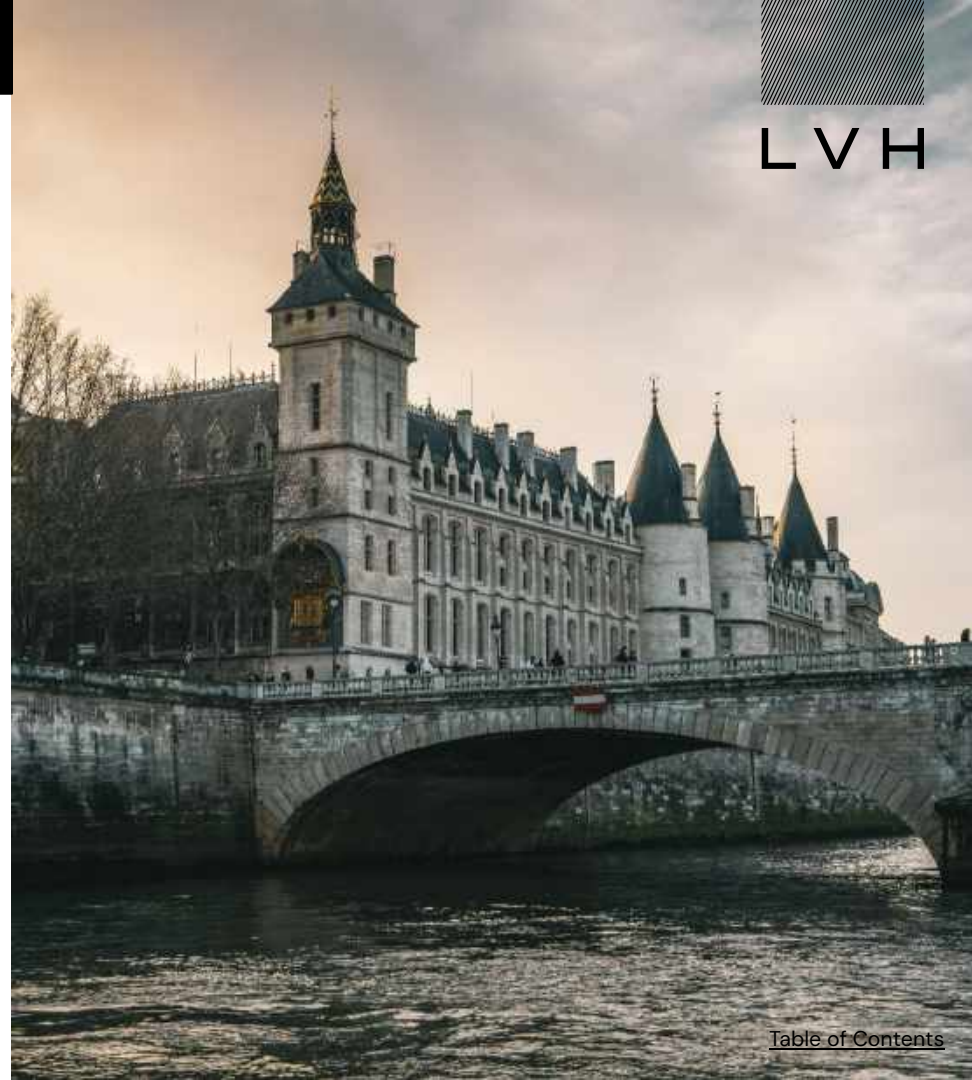

SEINE RIVER

Running through the heart of Paris, the Seine is the best-known river in France. It flows from Dijon in the Alps to the English Channel at Le Havre. The Seine is both a major commercial river and a beautiful tourist attraction. Strolling along the banks or relaxing on a boat tour are lovely ways to view the city's monuments, historic buildings and ornate bridges. The two banks of the Seine offer their own distinct flavor of the Parisian experience. They are referred to as La Rive Gauche (the Left Bank) and a La Rive Droite (the Right Bank). Both banks are listed as UNESCO World Heritage Sites. The Left Bank has long been linked to writers, artists and café culture. The likes of Hemingway, Picasso and Matisse all once called La Rive Gauche their home. The Right Bank of the Seine, on the other hand, has always had stronger links with commerce and trade. La Rive Droite was traditionally the wealthier side of the Seine, though this is not entirely true in modern times.

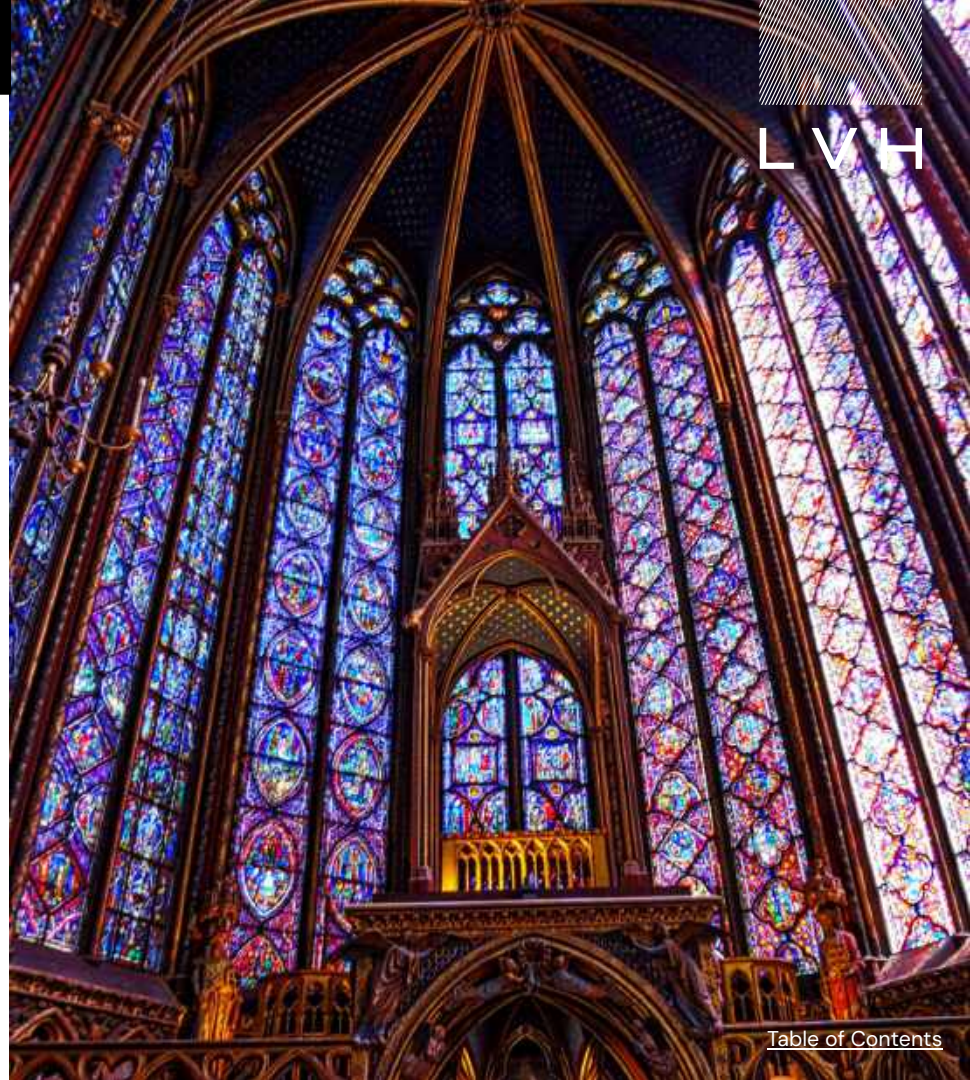

THE CONCIERGERIE

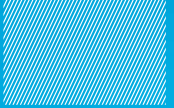

The Conciergerie is a splendid gothic palace. This UNESCO World Heritage site is a stunning example of 13th century secular Gothic architecture. Aside from its spectacular soaring arches, vaulted ceilings, and immense spaces, the Conciergerie holds a special place history as the royal palace of the first French kings. The Kings of France abandoned the palace at the end of the 14th century to settle in the Louvre and Vincennes. It then took on a judicial role, and part of the palace was converted and served as a notorious Reign of Terror (La Terreur) prison during the French Revolution. Between 1793 and 1795 more than 4,000 people accused of threatening the newly-formed republic were judged and incarcerated here. Its most famous prisoner was Marie Antoinette who spent her final days awaiting execution. One more remarkable feature of this gothic building, at its northeast corner, is an ornate, gilded public clock that's been keeping time for Parisians since the 14th century.

SAINTE CHAPELLE

Famous for its dazzling medieval stained glass windows and candlelight concerts, Sainte Chapelle is another gothic gem on Île de la Cité. In a city filled with magnificent churches, the beauty of this small chapel built to house religious relics has no equal. The stained glass windows of Sainte Chapelle soar up to the heavens, where the ceiling is flecked with gold to resemble stars. The walls seem to disappear into nothingness, giving the place an otherworldly lightness. But perhaps the most impressive aspects of the church's interior are the stunning rose windows which date back to the mid-13th century and are among the largest in Europe at a diameter of 13 meters (a bit more than 40 feet).

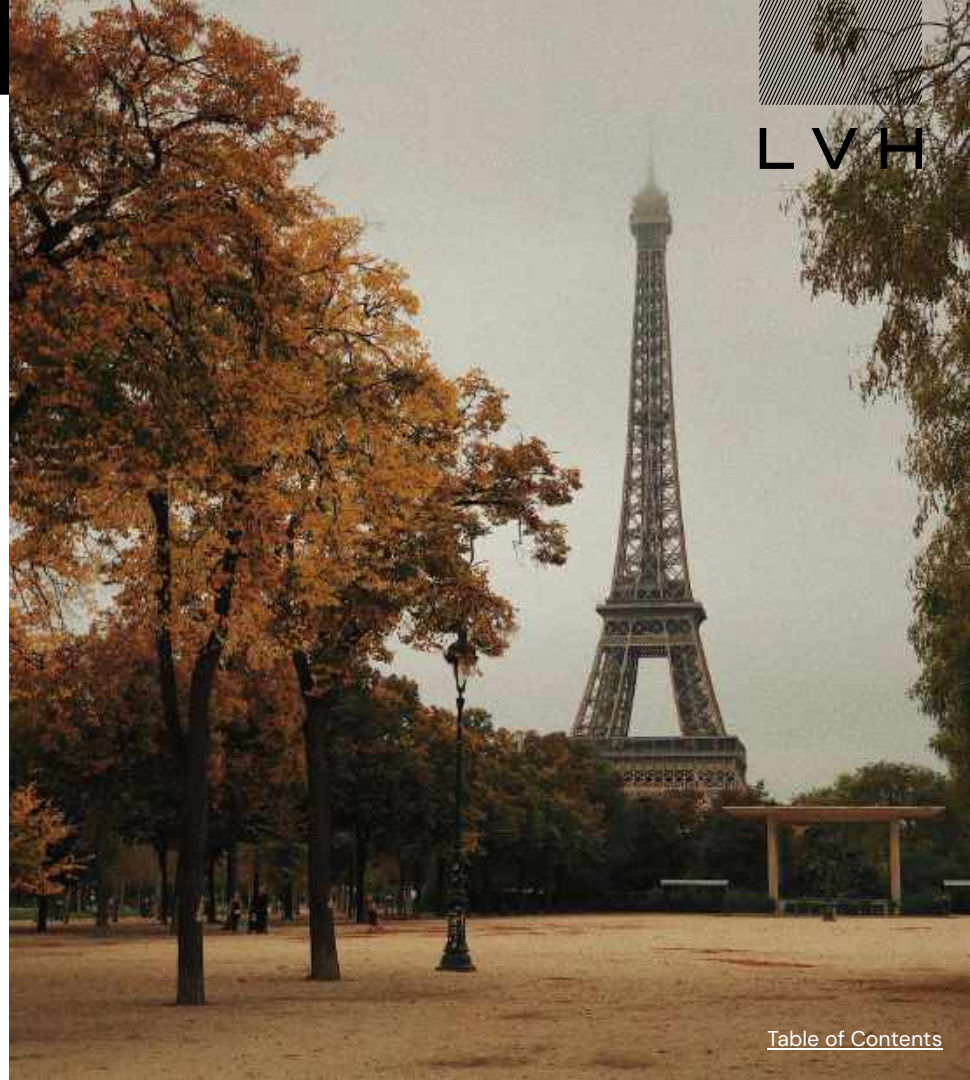

THE NOTRE DAME CATHEDRAL

The Notre Dame Cathedral is absolutely a must-see monument. A medieval masterpiece of gothic architecture, the church is one of the most visited historical sites in all of Europe, and for a good reason. Built over the span of two centuries, from 1163 to the mid-14th century, Notre Dame de Paris is a magnificent study of French gothic architecture. Since construction took so long, the style of the cathedral isn't completely uniform, letting you discover architectural elements from different gothic periods. Highly ornamented flying buttresses and gargoyles adorn the exterior as exquisite examples of Rayonnant gothic architecture.

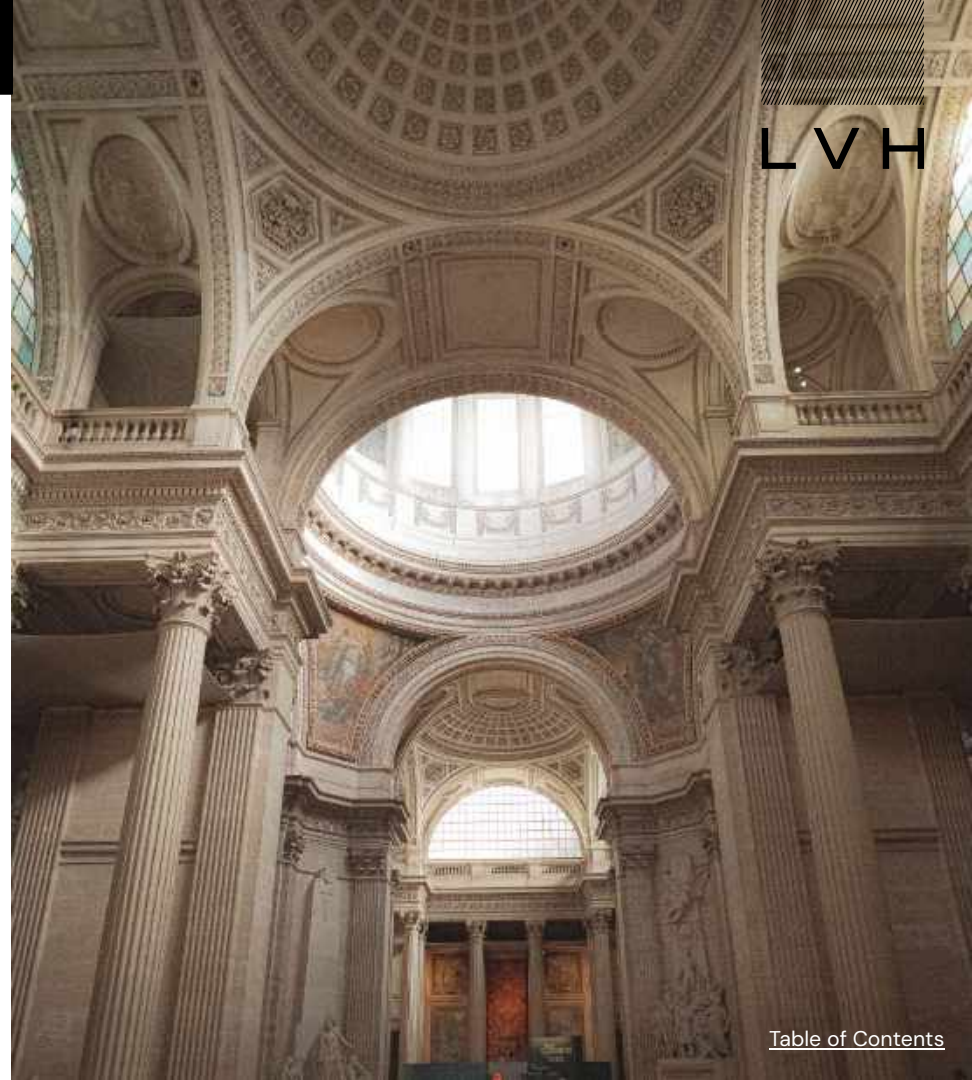

HOLOCAUST MEMORIAL (THE MÉMORIAL DE LA SHOAH)

Europe's largest center for information on the Holocaust, the Paris Holocaust Memorial educates visitors to fight against racism and intolerance. It was Inaugurated in 2005 by French President Jacques Chirac and celebrated French politician and Holocaust survivor Simone Veil. The Mémorial de la Shoah was created with one purpose: understanding the past to illuminate the future.

THE PANTHEON

The Pantheon is a building in the Latin Quarter. It was originally built as a church to house the reliquary of St. Genevieve but after many changes, it is now hosting a secular mausoleum, housing the ashes of prominent French citizens. Built in the 18th century by Jacques-Germain Soufflot, the Pantheon is a monument of neo-classical style, with a facade similar to the Pantheon in Rome. This is the final resting place for Jean-Jacques Rousseau, Voltaire and Jacques-Germain Soufflot, Jean Moulin, André Malraux, Jean Monnet, Pierre Curie, Victor Hugo, Alexandre Dumas, Emile Zola, Jean Jaures, and Marie Curie.

PLACE DE LA CONTRESCARPE

Place de la Contrescarpe is not to be missed if you find yourself in the 5th Arrondissement, also known as the Latin Quarter. The Place de la Contrescarpe is a lively little square surrounded by charming cafés, restaurants, and little souvenir shops. It's a meeting point and an old stomping ground for literary greats like Hemingway, who mentions the place in The Sun Also Rises. James Joyce and George Orwell all lived and wrote here. This is where Joyce finished Ulysses and the neighborhood Orwell wrote about in Down And Out In Paris And London. Even the walls here are literary. This wall, on Rue Descartes, is decorated with poet-tree. The poem says, "Philosopher, do you have the chance to have a tree in your street?"

GREAT MOSQUE OF PARIS (LA GRANDE MOSQUÉE DE PARIS)

Under its green roofs, between its high, white exterior walls, the Great Mosque of Paris provides one of the largest spaces in France for the practice of Islam. Built from 1922–1926 in the wake of World War I, the Neo Spanish–Moorish style mosque sits on nearly three acres in the Quartier Latin. With beautiful patios, gardens, and prayer rooms as well as a tearoom, restaurant, and hammam covered with Moorish–style mosaics, this place of worship also warmly welcomes tourists and visitors of all origins and religions coming to discover the richness of Muslim art and civilization. The place is perfect if you just want to relax, sip on a mint tea or taste traditional Arab cuisine, snacking on authentic Arab pastries among the olive trees in the charming Moroccan courtyard.

CHÂTEAU OF VINCENNES (CHÂTEAU DE VINCENNES)

The Chateau de Vincennes was used as royal residence from the 12th to 18th centuries and it has preserved its medieval towers, the Sainte-Chapelle and the 14th century keep which is the highest of its kind in Europe. In 1365, Charles V, King of France, transformed the family manor house at Vincennes into a more suitable royal dwelling and built the present keep to house his art collection and manuscripts. However, as of the early 15th century through to the 1800s, the castle keep was used as a prison, a symbol of absolute State power. Prisoners such as the Marquis de Sade, Nicholas Fouquet, former owner of Château Vaux le Vicomte, the forerunner of Versailles, and philosopher Denis Diderot, were all incarcerated within the château's sturdy walls.

PARKS

Table of Contents

When you're exploring an urban destination, the city's parks may not be the first places you think of. Yet, these green spaces in the heart of the cosmopolitan chaos leave revealing clues about the city's distinct character. Big or small, lush or bare, these are the ultimate sites for people-watching. Parks are integral parts of cities – places where the spontaneity of civil life unfurls. Visitors may genuinely breathe in the rhythm and spirit of a destination, starting from its parks.

PARKS

1. Square Des Batignolles
2. Parc Monceau
3. Passy Cemetery (Cimetière De Passy)
4. Tuileries Gardens (Jardin Des Tuileries)
5. Luxembourg Garden (Jardin Du Luxembourg)
6. Montparnasse Cemetery (Cimetière Du Montparnasse)
7. La Promenade Plante (Or Coulée Verte)
8. Père Lachaise

SQUARE DES BATIGNOLLES

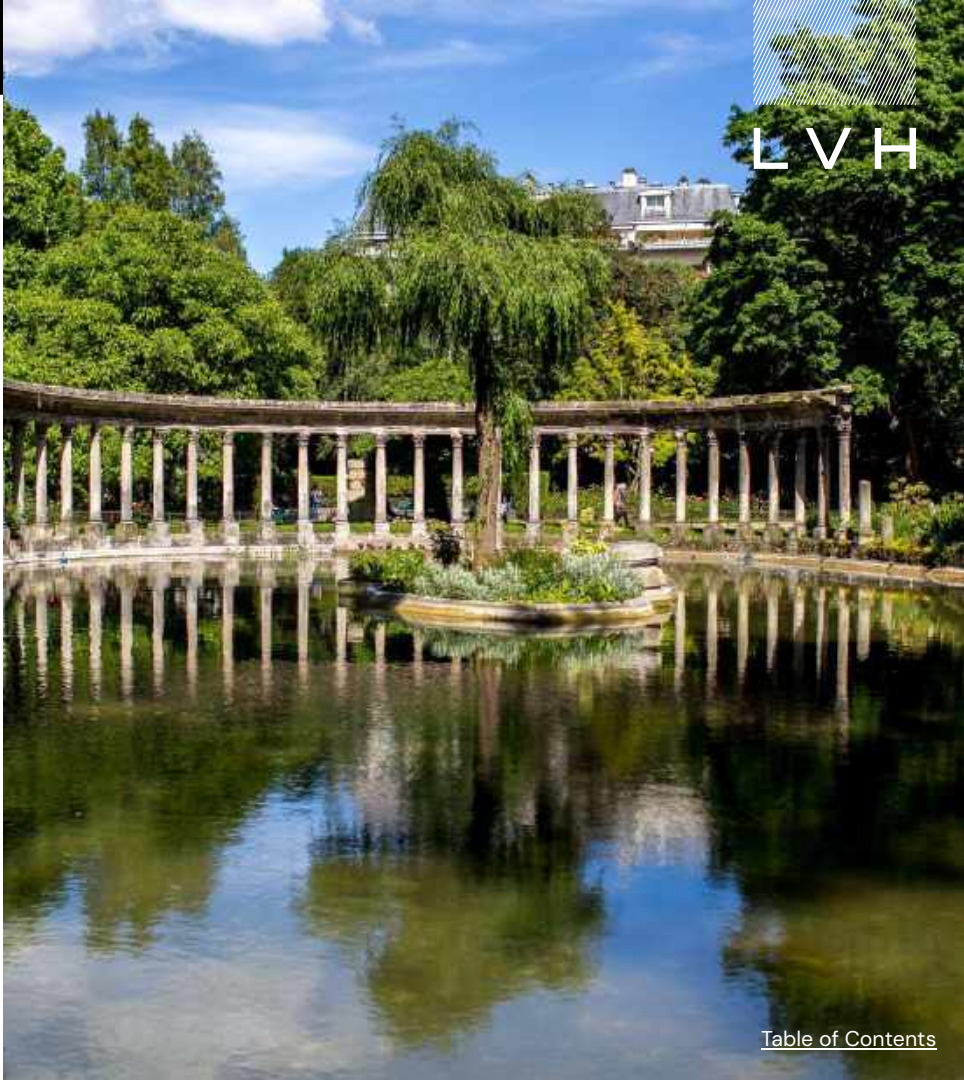

In the hip northwestern neighborhood of Batignolles, this little oasis sits behind a church and beside railroad tracks. The English garden is peaceful, perhaps surprisingly so for its location. Beautiful green lawns, a pond, and a small stream running through the square make this a popular place for locals to enjoy lunch on a nice day before returning to work.

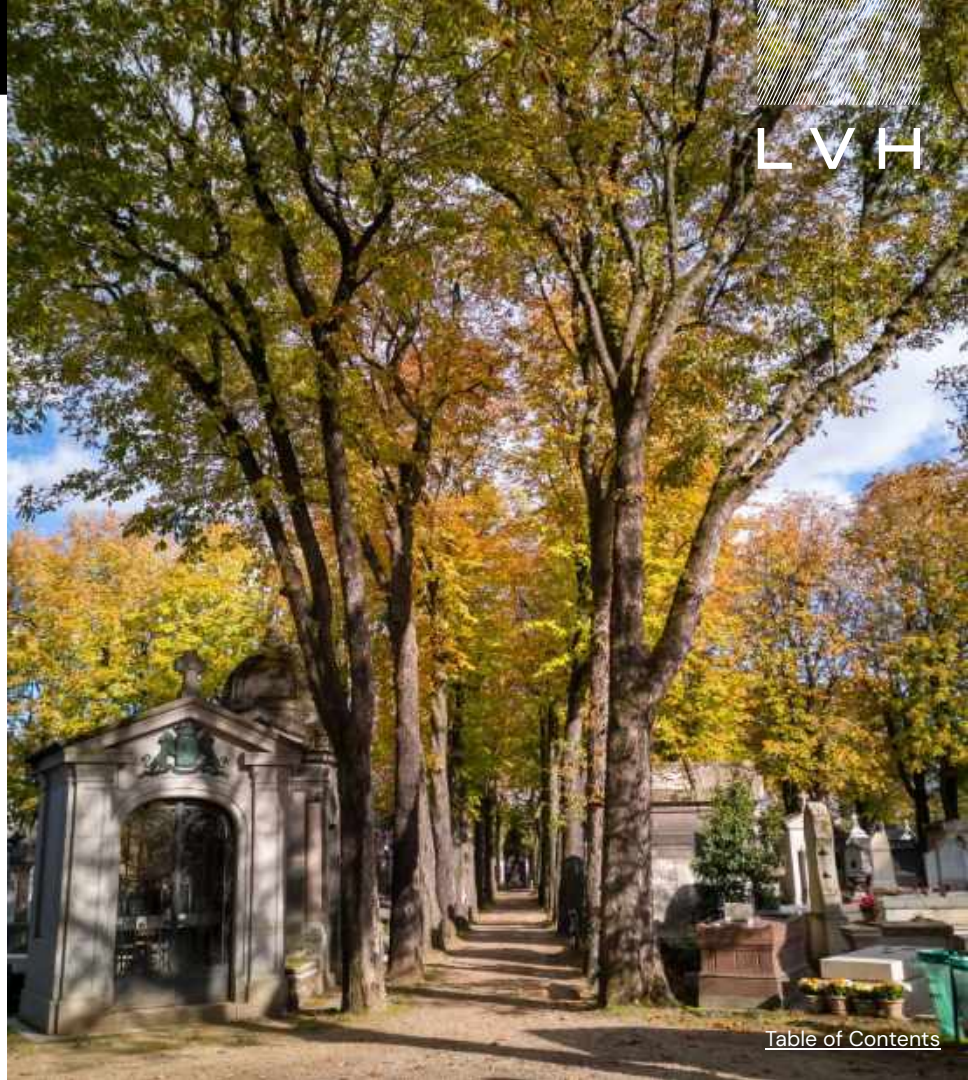

PARC MONCEAU

This park is as elegant as the neighborhood surrounding it. Perhaps the most romantic park in the city, the Parc Monceau differs from other Parisian parks with its informal English garden style. The pond, classical colonnade, and statues throughout the garden make this a charming spot for a stroll or a lunch. With a playground and pony rides, children are sure to love it too. Located in the 8th Arrondissement, the park's main entrance on Boulevard Courcelles has a lovely rotunda, once part of one of the old city walls. The park's most noteworthy feature, however, lies just past the rotunda. A truly ethereal endroït, a tranquil pond bordered by Corinthian columns, awaits.

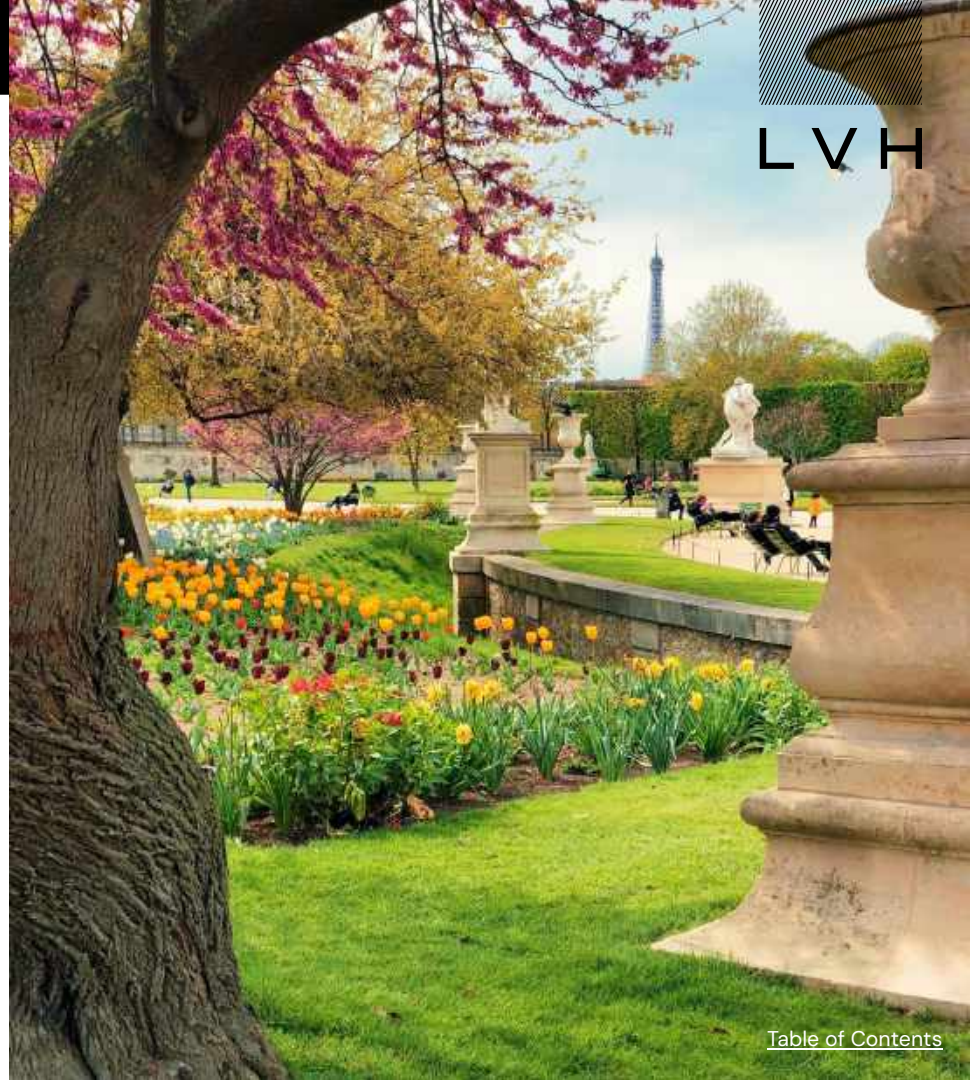

PASSY CEMETERY (CIMETIÈRE DE PASSY)

Significantly smaller than the famous Père Lachaise or Montmartre cemeteries, Passy's little graveyard is very much atmospheric. Views of the Trocadéro and the Eiffel Tower add to the enchantment of this cemetery, whose grandiose art deco-style entrance belies its relatively young age. Although not exactly studded with famous names, here lie the remains of composer Claude Debussy, perfumer Jacques Guerlain, fashion designer Hubert de Givenchy, and painter Edouard Manet.

TUILERIES GARDENS (JARDIN DES TUILERIES)

Jardin des Tuileries in Paris, the splendid public garden between the Louvre and Place de la Concorde, takes center stage as the place to meet, play, and relax. As you stroll through the sun-dappled pathways, it's hard to imagine this was ground zero for the French Revolution and the official residence of French kings and queens. Perhaps the most famous garden in Paris, the Jardin des Tuileries is a lush haven offering great views of the Louvre Museum. The historic park was created by Catherine de Medici in 1564, but it didn't take on its current French formal garden style until 1664 when it was redesigned on the orders of King Louis XIV. If you've never visited, it should certainly make the itinerary. Right after perusing the wonders of the Louvre, cross over from the pyramid and go for a placid stroll among the fountains and flowers. Though the highly trafficked Rue de Rivoli runs alongside the garden, you'll find the Tuileries to offer a welcome respite from the city proper. The impressive park is stunning too, decorated with classic statues and lined with trees, blooms, and greenery where you can lie on the grass and read a book.

LUXEMBOURG GARDEN (JARDIN DU LUXEMBOURG)

Often overshadowed by the famed Tuileries Gardens, the Jardin du Luxembourg is a Parisian favorite. Nicknamed “Luco” by residents. If you appreciate architecture, check out the beautiful Medici Fountain and the impressive Palace of Luxembourg (home to the senate), built by Marie de Medici in the 1600s. The Orangerie in the park is home to more than 180 different plants, and the greenhouses showcase more than 400 orchid species. Children will have a great time playing in the enormous playground with all sorts of slides and swings. Or, to engage in a more traditional Parisian childhood activity, they could rent a toy sailboat and guide it around the park’s main pond.

LA PROMENADE PLANTÉE (OR COULÉE VERTE)

La Coulée Verte, also called La Promenade Plantée, is a nearly three-mile-long path along an abandoned railway track taking you from Bastille out to the nearby suburb of Vincennes. Opened in 1993, Paris's linear park served as the inspiration for New York's High Line, which wasn't inaugurated until 2009. The track starts just behind the Opéra Bastille, up on top of the Viaduc des Arts. A discreet staircase on the corner of the red brick archways leads up to this atypical park.

PÈRE LACHAISE

Perched atop a hill in the 20th Arrondissement, Père Lachaise is the most-visited cemetery in the world. More than three million visitors come here each year to stroll through the peaceful cimetière and see the graves of famous French and foreign artists. Known today as the final resting place of Jim Morrison, Oscar Wilde, Honoré de Balzac, Eugène Delacroix, and Edith Piaf, Père Lachaise wasn't always considered a prestigious place to be buried when the cemetery first opened in 1804.

CHRISTMAS MARKETS

Paris is a show-stopper city at any time of year, but come winter, it takes on a new, heartwarming persona as the air becomes filled with the smell of spiced sweets and vin chaud (mulled wine), which drifts across from the many Christmas markets. With crisp winter sunshine illuminating landmarks like Notre Dame, the Eiffel Tower, the Louvre, and many more. Christmas-selling trinkets and snacks adorn almost every arrondissement – in typically chic style. Many are set around or nearby various iconic attractions, and here are the finest Christmas markets.

LA MAGIE DE NOËL, TUILERIES GARDEN

This market is sprawled across the vast green space of Tuileries Garden. There are about 100 stalls selling every Christmas trinket imaginable, with plenty winter delicacies: roasted chestnuts, mulled wine, an ice rink, a towering Christmas tree and even a full fair ground with elaborately decorated carousels.

LA DÉFENSE CHRISTMAS MARKET

Christmas at this market is in one of the city's main business districts. Slick skyscrapers and arty, angular office buildings make the backdrop, but thanks to some very stylish decorating, it looks and feels remarkably festive. The sheer size (with about 350 chalets, it's one of the largest markets) also means there's an incredible variety of products on offer, from toys to jewelry to decorations to non-Christmas items. There's also a large ice rink where you can burn off calories from all the food you sampled at all the food stalls.

MARCHÉ DE NOËL, NOTRE DAME

Since it's set in the shadow of Notre Dame Cathedral, why not combine a visit to this market with a jaunt around the mighty gothic masterpiece? For extra sightseeing points, you can also take a look at the oldest tree in Paris, dating back to the 17th century and sits on the edge of Square René Viviani, where the market is held. The market itself is small and pretty, and the many artisan maker stalls mean it's a great bet for arts and crafts of all kinds, such as mosaics, stationery, and raku (a type of Japanese pottery).

SAINT-GERMAIN-DES-PRÉS CHRISTMAS MARKET

A neighborhood as artsy as Saint-Germain-des-Prés could only ever host a super-stylish market, and this one lives up to expectations. Many of the 20-30 chalets stock high-end gifts and luxury-leaning items, but the main draw for many visitors is the fashion, with items from local and international designers on sale (mirroring the many clothing stores around the area) alongside all the usual festive staples. Food and drink here is also a more upscale, so if you fancy swapping your vin chaud for champagne and artisan chocolate, now's your chance.

From left to right: a boy in a striped sweater and sunglasses, a girl in a white shirt and dark vest with sunglasses, a boy in a grey sweater and blue scarf with sunglasses, and a girl in a light blue shirt and dark vest with sunglasses. They are all smiling or looking towards the camera. The background features a brick wall and large windows showing a cityscape. PARC ASTÉRIX

Embark on an adventure to the heart of this famous “village” and get a taste of what it's like to live the life of a Gaul! Enter the Roman Empire and enlist yourself in the army or come and watch our proud legionnaires perform in the arena; plunge into Ancient Greek mythology; put your courage to the test and brave the Vikings. On the other hand jump on rollercoaster rides at Parc Astérix! The Goudurix roller coaster will set your head spinning with its seven loops, while the inverted roller coaster Oziris propels you along at 90 kilometers per hour, 40 meters off the ground. There's plenty to experience at this truly unique theme park!

CITY OF SCIENCES AND INDUSTRY (PARIS'S CITÉ DES SCIENCES ET DE L'INDUSTRIE)

Paris Science City is the largest science museum in Europe. Set in the vast Parc de la Villette in the northeast of the 19th Arrondissement, the museum is housed in an enormous modern building incorporating all sorts of fun for curious activities for children and adults. Inside the City of Sciences and Industry, permanent and temporary exhibitions teach you anything and everything about the human body, transportation, science, mathematics, robots, and so much more. Cité des Sciences makes for a great family outing. If you're in Paris with teens, there's also a small shopping mall attached to the museum which has some nice boutiques and offers indoor skydiving! And if that's not enough to keep the teens entertained, spend some time in the on-site aquarium, planetarium, or IMAX theater housed in a round, mirrored building called La Géode.

PALACE OF DISCOVERY (PALAIS DE LA DÉCOUVERTE)

There's nothing like an amazing building filled with remarkable things to keep both parents and children happy. Housed in the west wing of Le Grand Palais and dating back to 1897, the Palais de la Découverte was converted into a museum in 1937 by the Nobel-Prize-winning physicist Jean Baptiste Perrin. this lesser-known museum combines history, glamorous architecture, and science. Brimming with interactive exhibits on chemistry, mathematics, biology, and astronomy, this science museum features a pi room, optical illusions, puzzles to solve, buttons to press, and discoveries to be made. Most exhibits have English translations, and the very few that don't are still intriguing.

MUSEUM OF HUMANITY (THE MUSÉE DE L'HOMME)

This museum is placed in the northern wing of the Palais de Chaillot on Trocadero overlooking the Eiffel Tower. Wandering through this enormous space is enlightening. It brings together innumerable pieces to tell the story of mankind including both progress and downfalls. Working hand-in-hand with the National Museum of Natural History in the Jardin des Plantes, this museum takes you on a journey of humanity's evolution. It highlights differences and similarities, reminding us that, in the end, we are all human. Temporary exhibitions also reinforce this message. All in all, the Musée de l'Homme is an untraditional museum offering incredible views and thought-provoking exhibits. It's a place to slow down and learn something, and it's a great museum to explore with children of all ages.

THE BALLON GENERALI (BALLON DE PARIS)

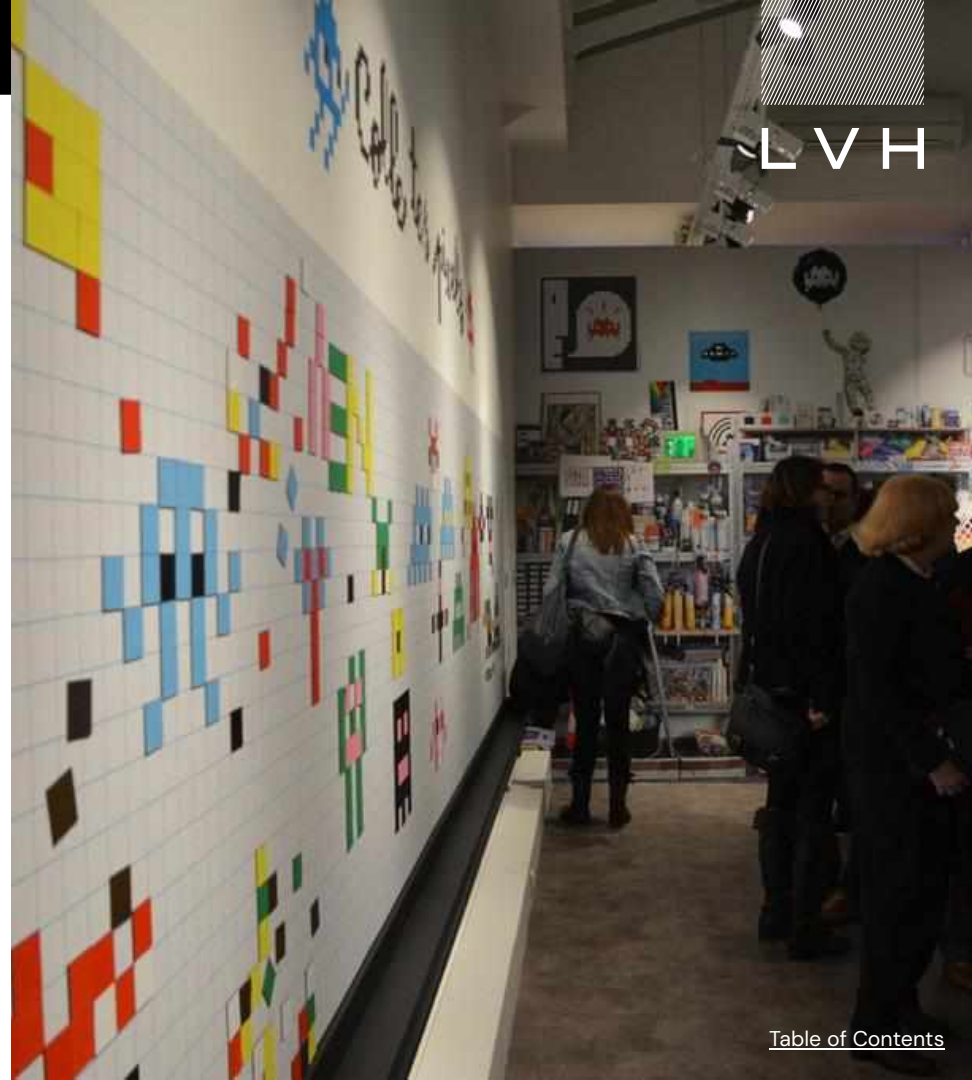

Why not take the family for a thrilling balloon lift-off? Drift up in this helium-filled balloon in Parc André Citroën that remains tethered to the ground as it lifts you 150 meters into the air for spectacular panoramas. The balloon plays an active environmental role, changing color depending on air quality and pollution levels. The Ballon Generali has been in Paris since 1999. It was created and developed by the French company Aerophile SAS to celebrate the year 2000.

THE HERBE MUSEUM (MUSÉE EN HERBE)

Exhibitions at the Musée en Herbe change regularly and have recently included works by the Parisian street artist Invader, as well as examples of famous artworks discovered through play. All exhibitions are geared toward children but are also fun for adults as they teach you to look at art in a new, more playful way. With just four small rooms, the museum makes it easy to keep children's attention. You receive a small booklet with challenges to complete during your visit – great enjoyment for young and old.

INVADER HUNTING ON THE STREETS OF PARIS

If you're on a family trip, this is the perfect way to keep the children excited, interested, and occupied. Combining street art, video games, and scavenger hunts, this activity will surely please the young and the young at heart. To date, world-renowned Parisian street artist Invader has placed some 1,400 (and counting) tiled creatures called Invaders (inspired by the arcade game, Space Invaders) across the city, often on street corners above the street names, others on empty walls, or even on the pavement. You can download the app called FlashInvaders, allowing you to create a gallery of the pieces of art discovered, pushing you to see the city in a different way. Street art Invaders can be found by the Louvre, the Eiffel Tower, the Trocadero, the Ile de la Cité, around Le Marais, and the list goes on. So you can take your time looking at the sights while your children search for Invaders.

FAIRGROUND ARTS MUSEUM (MUSÉE DES ARTS FORAINS)

This singular, and wonderfully unconventional hidden gem is right around the corner from Bercy Village in the 12th Arrondissement. Residing in former wine storage warehouses, guests are transported back to 19th and early 20th century fairgrounds while walking through grandiose rooms filled with original carrousels, fairground games, costumes, and oddities. In those early days of fair culture, adults not children were the target audience. Back then, fairs provided an escape from everyday life through fantasy and play of lights, sounds, games, and thrills. The experience invokes the use of imagination stimulated by the intricate simplicity of what existed in this bygone era and the museum completely immerses you in that period far from the sophistication of the modern world.

PARIS DISNEYLAND

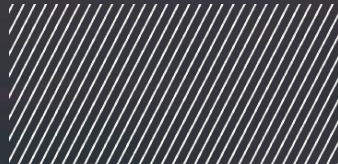

Dive into the magic of your favorite worlds of Disney, Pixar, MARVEL and Star Wars. With family or friends, collect selfies of Disney characters and set out for an adventure with more than 50 attractions across the two Disney parks. News of trill inducing edavetures is the new Star Wars Hyperspace Mountain and it will delight thrill seekers. It might be easier, however, to find those pieces with the help of someone who is familiar with the local landscape. Paris is rich in history and as such, is filled with promise when it comes to beautifully aged items, whether you're looking for furniture or objet d'arts. Enlisting the expertise of a local individual in the field of antiques and vintage pieces may give you enormous insight on how to find the perfect piece to add to your collection.

- Distinguishing a real find
- Differences between antique and vintage
- Evaluations, and more
