

An aerial photograph of the Saint-Jean-Cap-Ferrat coastline in France. The image shows a deep blue bay with a small harbor filled with sailboats. A hillside covered in greenery and small houses rises from the water's edge. In the foreground, the town of Saint-Jean-Cap-Ferrat is visible, built into a steep, rocky cliff. The town features traditional Mediterranean architecture with terracotta roofs and a prominent church with a tall bell tower. The overall scene is bright and sunny, with clear blue skies and water.

ABOUT

Saint Jean Cap Ferrat has always been a go-to spot for luxury travelers and it's no wonder with its sweeping vistas; sunsets that color the sky with gold, violet and apricot; beaches that beckon fashionable swimwear; fine dining beyond compare and quaint, high-end shops. This charming former fishing village, in the heart of the French Riviera between Nice and Monaco, is a favorite among international millionaires and billionaires and European royalty. Opulent homes – some of the most expensive in the world – peak through lush vegetation. Cap Ferrat has far fewer tourists than any other place on the Cote D'Azur and is home to only about 1,600 permanent residents. Clearly, it is the ideal vacation destination for privacy, relaxation and the finer things in life.
