Located on the southern flank of the Rocher, the Zoological Gardens of Monaco was established in 1954 by Prince Rainier III and is one of the last remaining royal menageries in the world. During your visit, you will be immersed in an almost wild environment. The gardens are home to nearly 250 animals representing about 50 species: exotic birds, turtles, caimans, hippopotamuses, reptiles, primates and farm animals. SARDINIA

English writer D.H. Lawrence said: Sardinia is something different ... lovely space all around, distance to travel, anything of finished, anything of definitive. It's like freedom itself. From its dreamy white sand coves, sheer cliffs, and mountainscapes dotted with roaming sheep, Sardinia has become one of Italy's foremost luxury destinations. An untamed hinterland meets the emerald waters of the Tyrrhenian, with dramatic rock formations sculpting countless craggy coves and serene enclaves caressed by frothy seafoam. Drop anchor along the picturesque coastlines of Costa Smeralda or Golfo di Orosei, or set sail for the epic La Maddalena Islands. Here, La Dolce Vita living is particularly potent, with a distinct regional culture adding a novel spin to the Italian tricolor.
